Hector: Cat About Town Notorious Gossip

A certain couple in the village had "drifted apart." They were hardly ever seen together, until at last the vicar took the matter in hand, and by his wise reasoning with them effected a reconciliation. The vicar was pleased at the new state of affairs, and even more pleased when a little later the news got round that a little stranger was expected.

When informed of the interesting event, one dear old lady was highly delighted. "I'm so glad," she said, "so very glad! And to think that it was all the dear vicar's doing!"

"Now Tommy," said the teacher in a scripture lesson, "suppose an other boy struck you on the right cheek. What would you do?"

"Give him the other cheek," said Tommy promptly, with a pious smile.

The teacher beamed. "That's very good," she replied. "Yes," said Tommy, with great heat, "and then if he hit me I'd pretty well paralyse him."

"You ungrateful little worm!" cried an exasperated wife.

"After all I've done for you! Where would you be now if it wasn't for me?"

"Having a lively evening at the Pig and Whistle," came the timid reply.

You who see typographical errors, study for a moment this little opus by John W. Harden on typographical errors:

"The typographical error is a slippery thing and sly. You can hunt till you are dizzy, but it somehow will get by. Till the forms are off the presses, it is strange how still it keeps; it shrinks down into a corner and it never stirs or peeps. That typographical error, too small for human eyes, Till the ink is on the paper when it grows to mountain size. The boss he stares with horror, then he grabs his hair and groans."

G. B. S. ON PUBLIC SPEAKING

"His Disgraceful Career" On The Platform

"My career as a public speaker was not only futile politically: it was sometimes disgraceful and degrading."

Mr. George Bernard Shaw makes this confession in an article entitled, "The Telltale Microphone," in the current number of the "Political Quarterly."

"I had my platform triumphs, and was vociferously acclaimed a jolly good fellow in town halls crowded with enthusiastic partisans, after which my candidate friends would be duly defeated by opponents who had not a word to say that would have imposed on the giddiest rabbit," he writes.

"By whether my candidate was returned or not I suffered agonies of disgust at the whole business, and shame for my part in it."

"I know that many... may yet be terrified by the microphone's extension of the power of the spoken word, in view of our deplorable national susceptibility to baldpate. It may seem to them that if the phrase-makers and the bunk merchants get control of the microphone, they will control the world. But the bunk merchants will be hoist with their own petard; for the Mike will find them out."

ROYAL NAVY

The America Station

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 25
H.M.S. York, Capt. H. P. Boxer, flagship of Vice-Admiral the Hon. Sir Matthew Best on the America Station, will leave Bermuda on Monday next, for visits to United States ports. She should be at Washington from October 30 to November 7, and New York from November 8 to 16, returning to Bermuda on November 18.

Consequent on the transfer of the cruisers Exeter and Ajax, of the South American Division, for temporary duty in the Eastern Mediterranean, H.M.S. Dragon, Capt. F. R. M. Johnson, which recently returned to the America Station after recommissioning at Chatham, has begun a cruise in South American waters. She has already visited Para and Ceara. To-day she is expected at Bahia, to remain until November 4. Later she will visit Santos, Montevideo, Buenos Aires, and Rio de Janeiro, remaining at the last-named over Christmas.

H.M.S. Danae, Capt. C. H. Knox-Little, which is due home shortly to recommission, will first make a cruise to Baltimore. She will leave Bermuda on Monday and will be off Baltimore from October 31 to November 7. She is expected to arrive at Devonport about a fortnight later.

PAYMASTER FOR THE ENTERPRISE

Paymaster Commander R. M. Bolster, after two years at the R.N. Barracks, Devonport, will join H.M.S. Enterprise at Chatham to-day. This cruiser is undergoing large repairs after several years' service on the East Indies Station, to which she is to return about January next. Paymaster Commander Bolster last served afloat in the aircraft-carrier Furious in 1931-33. He entered the Navy as an assistant clerk in January, 1915, in the battle-cruiser Inflexible; was appointed in April, 1916, to the staff of Admiral Sir Frederic Brock at Scapa base; and from January, 1918, was Assistant Secretary to Rear-Admiral Allen Hunt in the Third Light Cruiser Squadron, Grand Fleet.

COMMAND OF THE COLOMBO

The October Navy List shows that Captain C. E. B. Simeon has relinquished command of the cruiser Colombo, which has been at Aden for several weeks. In the vacancy, the second-in-command and navigator, Lieutenant-Commander D. H. S. Craven, has assumed command with the rank of temporary commander. Comdr. Craven joined the Colombo in June, 1933, when she recommissioned at Chatham, and had formerly been on the staff at the Submarine Depot, Fort Blockhouse. In 1928-30 he was navigator of the sloop Lutin in the Persian Gulf. He was a midshipman of H.M.S. Iron Duke during the last year of the War.

THE WORLD AND WAR

Responsibility Of Britain: Problem Of World's Population

(BY LORD MACLAY)

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 24. The march of events since the Great War has been rapid beyond all expectation, and the world today is in a condition of crisis unparalleled in history. In every country there is unrest, in some convulsion and revolution, and all nations live in dread of another Armageddon.

The League of Nations calls for peace, but lasting peace is impossible without tremendous changes. That overpopulation and economic needs largely constitute the causes for war is undoubted.

Germany, Italy, and Japan are practically without direct outlets, and demand room, together with a share of world resources. According to the latest records the population of Germany was 65,000,000, or 359.2 per square mile; Italy 41,814,000, or 349.3; and Japan (proper) about 72,000,000, or about 350 per square mile.

On the other hand, the population of Australia was 8,865,000, or 2.2 per square mile; of Canada 10,590,000, or 2.8; of New Zealand 1,534,000, or 14.8; of South Africa 8,310,000, or 17.7; of France 41,880,000, or 198.8; and of Great Britain 46,440,000, or 492.9.

POLICY FOR THE FUTURE

The flags of Great Britain and France fly over a large part of the earth's surface where room is available. It is true that wherever the British flag flies Britain has not only had economic gain, but she has taken responsibility for tutelage of backward peoples, greatly to their progress and advancement. But time has brought almost unthinkable changes. What were called colonies in the past are now practically independent States—Canada, South Africa, Australia, and New Zealand—all of which could at any time dissociate themselves from Great Britain. India, Ceylon, Burma, Egypt, and small Colonies and Dependencies now under control or tutelage must, in the not distant future, be equally free.

What then might Great Britain do? It could:

- (1) Acknowledge that the day is past when any nation, however great, is justified in keeping or seeking control, except for people outside its own bounds.
- (2) Decide that Great Britain in future should be one State, detached from all Colonies and Dependencies, except as a member of the League of Nations.
- (3) Australia, South Africa, New Zealand, and Canada, could be declared entirely independent States.
- (4) Backward countries with peoples still under tutelage could be placed under the control or the direction of the League of Nations.
- (5) It could do everything possible to strengthen the powers of the League of Nations.

JEALOUSY OF OTHER POWERS

It is undoubted that the jealousy of other nations of Britain's association with Colonies and Dependencies is Britain's outstanding danger. And the same jealousy of the Colonies and Dependencies' association with Britain is equally a standing danger to the Colonies, rendering them more liable to attack, whereas, separated from Britain, they would, as independent States, be members of the League of Nations and have protection like other members.

Apart from almost insurmountable difficulties at all times Britain, even if willing, could not give reasonable protection, say, to Australia or New Zealand, if, for instance, the Japanese or Chinese insisted on free entrance for their people, and Australia or New Zealand objected. And if Britain's chance was at war in Europe assistance of any kind whatsoever would be beyond possibility.

At present Australia and Canada are practically empty continents, there are only 22 persons to the square mile in Australia, and 2.8 in Canada. Surely these and other sparsely populated countries should have an open door for friendly comers. Let God's earth be occupied by those who need it. Why should British, Germans, Italians, and other nationalities alike not have free access?

At present Canada, which is constantly calling for trade preference, practically prohibits even Britons free entrance, while other Colonies make emigration from Great Britain difficult. It is unthinkable that unoccupied lands should not be open to emigration from countries now overcrowded.

FREE INTERCHANGE OF PEOPLES

In any case, without reasonably free interchange of people, the Empire cannot long exist. Trade in commodities will not keep it together.

The only nation other than Britain with large colonies is France, and if Britain leads the way, France and other countries with colonies will be compelled to follow.

According to the latest statistics, the population of France is declining at the rate of about 100,000 per annum, and in Australia a small fall is said to be taking place, whereas in Japan there is an increase of about 1,000,000 per annum.

Apart from a great principle, Britain would be free from the danger of war, and enormous treasure would be saved. Such changed conditions could not but hasten the progress of Free Trade throughout the world, from which Britain would largely gain, but if Protection had more or less for a time to continue, then Britain should place all countries outside of Britain in the same position in their relation to Britain, requiring similar consideration in return.

Each individual nation of State would deal with its own resources, and all outside would have economic equality of opportunity. If, however, Britain pursues a Protection policy, seeking to make a close market of the present British Empire for British trade, every other nation will be at enmity with her, and war sooner or later will become inevitable. That world changes of great magnitude must come there is not a doubt, and if not brought about by peaceful effort they will be forced by calamitous war. And if war comes, apart from loss of life and uncertainty of result, the cost would far exceed the value, if any, of the retention of present conditions.

So far as finance is concerned, a balance sheet of Empire would be full of interest. It is questionable which side, profit or loss, advantage or disadvantage, would face Britain even now.

The sentiment of the Colonies should not be forgotten. In a recent speech delivered at Brandon, in Western Canada, the Canadian Prime Minister, Mr. Bennett made the statement that "Canada cannot become embroiled in disputes in which they have no direct interest." And there is similar feeling in other parts of the Empire.

The Natural end of Canada is union of some kind with the United States, and comparatively little would make some of Britain's other Colonies detach themselves from Britain. The tie is very slender.

Britain is without doubt the outstanding Christian nation in the world, and is the nation which should lead in any great movement. In a recent speech Mr. Lansbury said:—

"What I would do if I had the power to go to Geneva, backed by our people, would be to say very much what Dr. Salter said a little while ago, and that is that we, the great Imperialist race, have finished with Imperialism; that we are willing for all the peoples under our flag to be free to establish their own government; that there should be no such things as domination either in our minds or in our action; that we should be willing that the whole of the resources under our control should be pooled for the service of all mankind."

There are weighty words and who will say that the great majority of the British nation, if expression could be given to the true feeling of the people, would not largely concur in the views of Mr. Lansbury?

In Naples a native Italian recently said to a Britisher in private:—"The people in Naples don't want war—it is the people in Rome." This remark has its significance for us. No one would suggest that the British Government wants war, but there is al-

LONDON WEDDING

Naval Officer's Scots Bride

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 22. The marriage took place on Saturday afternoon at St. Mary's Church, Bryanston Square, London, between Paymaster Lieutenant Robert Michael Phelps Skinner, Royal Navy, the younger son of Lieutenant-Colonel E. W. Skinner, O.B.E., J.P., M.D., of Mountfield, Rye, Sussex, and Miss Catherine Edith Mary Macdonald, the elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Macdonald, of Shanghai.

The bride is a granddaughter of the late Mr. Donald Macdonald, of Strove, Skelmorlie, where her father lived until he went to China. As her father was unable to be in England for the wedding Miss Macdonald was given away by her brother, Mr. Colin Macdonald.

A dress of chalk-white silk more was worn by the bride, and its only ornamentation was a narrow turned-down collar and a plaited girde of silver lamé. The skirt was lengthened at the back into a rounded train, and her tulle veil fell from a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a sheaf of arum lilies.

THE BRIDESMAIDS

Miss Phyllis Lambie and Miss Shallice Simms were the bridesmaids. Their pretty dresses were of flame-coloured taffeta with two panels of stitched silver lamé extending from the necks to the hems in the front. Round their shoulders were short plated capes of taffeta hemmed with silver lamé, and their pleated bandeau worn on their heads were of lamé. They carried bouquets of bronze and apricot coloured chrysanthemums, and pinned to their dresses were gold bar brooches set with a naval crown in pearls, their gifts from the bridegroom.

The Rev. A. E. N. Simms and the Rev. H. C. L. Tindall officiated and Lieutenant J. C. Rome, R.N., was the groomsmen, and like the bridegroom, wore uniform.

After the ceremony Mrs. Macdonald held a reception at 61 Queensborough Terrace and later in the afternoon the bride and bridegroom left for a motoring honeymoon in the South of England.

"A JOURNAL OF EMINENCE"

Not Troubled By Modern Conveniences

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 22. Georges Duhamel, whose new novel, "In Sight of the Promised Land," will be published here this week, has just been appointed editor of the "Mercure de France." That means that if you want to ring him up at the office you can't do it, because the "Mercure de France" is not on the telephone.

It means also that if the Paris electric light supply breaks down M. Duhamel will not mind, for there is no electric light in the office of the "Mercure de France." I don't suppose that anywhere else in the world is there a journal of such eminence which pretends to lack these "necessaries."

Perhaps there will be a change now. At any rate, M. Duhamel, interviewed by the French Press, said that he might make "revolutionary changes" in those matters. Like Somerset Maugham and A. J. Cronin, Duhamel was in practice as a doctor before he took to writing.

ways special danger at the centre, and it is good for the circumference, where vision is often more clear, to express itself on matters political, and specially with regard to war.

Those who went through the agonies of the last war know best what war means, and dread another, and it is well to remember that no man under 35 to-day had the experience.

It may be thought that such suggested "changes" conditions would deprive Britain of her high place among the nations. Contrariwise it can be contended that they would raise her, economically and otherwise, to her greatest glory. Britain's responsibility in the present crisis is more than words can express.

VELVET, LACE, AND TULLE

How Tradition Has Changed

Is somebody trying to find out whether women will ever tire of velvet and lace? The autumn and winter seem likely to provide a test, but the answer is certain beforehand. Not only are these fabrics synonymous with luxury, since they used to be so expensive, but they are undoubtedly as becoming as cosmetics could possibly be—and a great deal more so than some of the cosmetics used to-day.

Of course, modern methods have made of lace a material that can be worn at all hours in one or another of its forms.

In the matter of balls, it would be pleasant to be able to send one's eyes by wireless to New York and see this year's Debutantes' Ball on October 25. The belles and the heiresses, and the lucky ones who are both, all wore velvet dresses. Isn't this a pin-point of history? We have long left behind the tradition that a debutante must wear white, whether it suits her or no; still further in the mists is the regulation that the material was muslin. If wreaths of roses are with us to-day it is only because the wheel has brought them round to us in due course. But, indeed, what is organdie but muslin?

THIS YEAR

For some years past the young girl has worn exactly what pleased her; and this year it is velvet, once the property of terrific dowagers with long-handled eyeglasses and high-bridged noses. Twenty-five years ago a bridesmaid, only chosen handmaiden, who elected to wear old-rose velvet was told that it was a strange choice. Fortunately she was attending an equally strange bride—one of the first to break from the white-satin tradition. She wore faintly chene silk with shadowy rosebuds on it, and a panel of Cluny lace, and her dressmaker told her that everyone would think she was a widow.

Well, there were two answers to that, and the bride gave them both. All her friends in church would know she wasn't a widow, and, anyhow, widows always got married in half-mourning—no rosebuds, only lavender. There can seldom have been a more curious social habit than that last.

Then, of course, nobody went to a wedding in black. It would have been tantamount to ill-wishing the happy pair.

All that has gone by the board; and now we have the Heaven-knows-how-many-great-granddaughters of the Pilgrim Fathers electing to dance themselves into society in velvet. It certainly must be a "first time." It is true that velvet has long forgotten that it once was "shaggy hair" and weighed down its wearer by its avardupols. Nowadays it can float like a mist round a pretty figure, and has flower colourings that match the face above, if the face above has left itself alone, and will still be flower-like, even if the face is carefully painted to show that it prefers art to nature. Young faces do, Heaven bless them. And older ones use it as an excuse, Heaven help them.

As for lace, it is being used in great quantities for indoor dress. The ever-favourite black Chantilly leads the way; and cellophane lace in different colours is running it close. A very long line is shown by Molyneux in red lace, really a princess dress, led to the figure by a line of delicate shirring, repeated behind the knee, but with a fan-shaped inset in the back seam to make dancing easy.

A new iridescent lace is used by Ardanse; it is rather fascinating with its changing lustre, especially in a prettily lighted room.

LACE IN FAVOUR

Even for day wear, lace is in favour. There is a new woollen lace which goes well on even severely tailored dresses, and is warm without being bulky.

It is natural that tulle should be largely used just now. It goes so well with lace that one hardly expects to see one without the other.

Thus, Chanel uses black lace and tulle to develop the idea of having tulle drapery to one side or the other, but not on both. This does not give a lop-sided effect, but somehow adds to the slimness of the outline. This example has wide taffeta shoulder straps, and a belt and band which descend from the waistline in the back to a deep V over the right thigh, where they end in a flat bow. Here they are met by a godet of black net, covered with tiny tulle ruffles, as are the cape sleeves attached to the shoulder straps.

The same idea is seen in a geometric-patterned cellophane lace dress on the skirt of which, front and back, are diagonal panels, again of plain black tulle. The bodice also has a cape back of the tulle.

A navy Chantilly is cross-checked in both silver and cellophane. This is made in exceedingly simple fashion, with a skirt gently widened to the hem, while the back of the bodice and sleeves are cut in one, reascending half way between the shoulders and meet in front to a row of Strauss buttons extending from shoulder to shoulder.

PAINTED TULLE

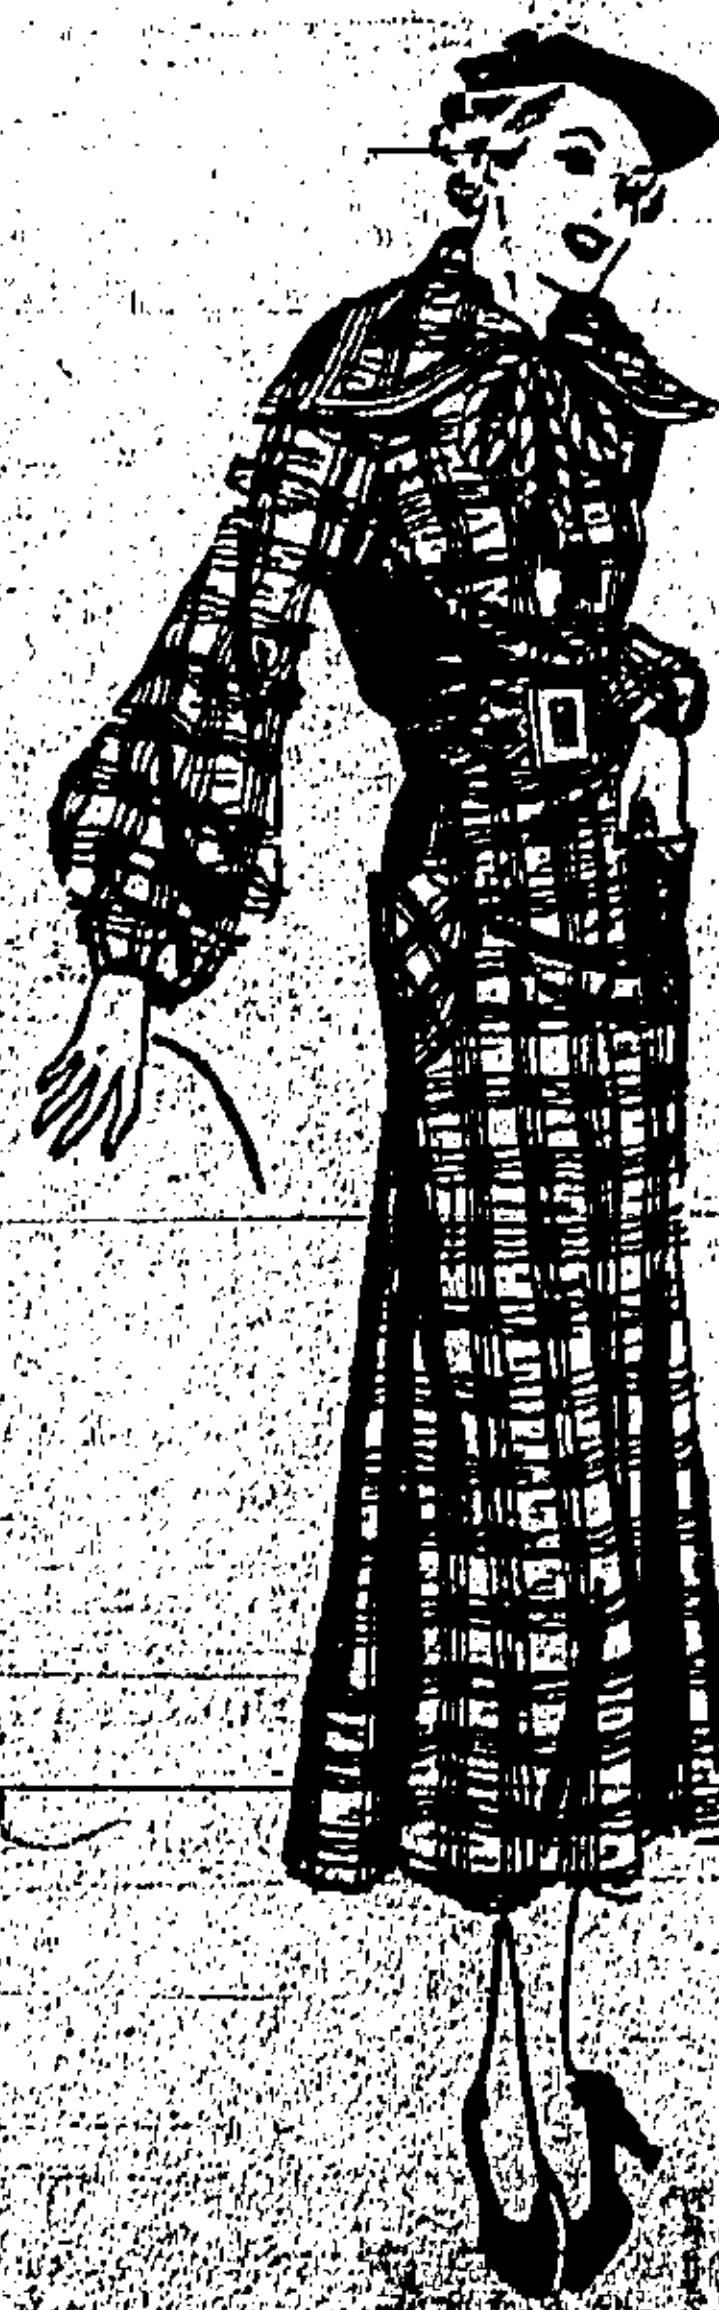

An exquisite painted tulle looks like multi-coloured dots on a net ground. This is well shown in a new sleeve, gathered full the length of the arm, widening from the narrow wrist to the shoulder, where the extra width is draped into something like a split bolero back.

Velvet-dotted tulle is another pleasing material of the moment.

Hard outlines are being left to outdoor wear. The whole feeling for more ceremonious wear is towards softening and lightening the dress by veiling the bodices and drawing the skirts into floating panels.

Men will be glad to hear that trains are not much in favour and that skirts are to have rounded ends, lying on the floor as near to their wearers' heels as well-trained dogs. There can be few things more exasperating to a man than to see a quite distant lady move away, and to find that he is standing on a portion of her costume. The wretched fellow is forced to apologise humbly, his soul meanwhile filled to the brim with a passionate conviction that it wasn't his fault and that all women are fools.

As to women who walk downstairs without gathering up their pendant skirts, they certainly do not deserve the apologies they receive—sometimes rather ungraciously—from infuriated followers. The rounded skirt is both welcome and graceful.

Screen Stars Set The Fashion

A delightfully feminine evening bag selected by Helen Mack is ball shaped and made of tiny ruffles of white chiffon.

The gauntlet of a fabric glove worn by Barbara Kent is gathered at the wrist into a series of tiny rings which give the effect of link bracelets.

Heather Angel has selected a brief short-sleeved jacket for for evening wear which made of a heavy red-like fabric covered with a dozen varieties of old-fashioned garden flowers.

Ginger Rogers is wearing a clever white sports shoe which is a fitted band edging the sole, facing without a tongue. It is cool and smart.

With a summer sports frock, Molly Lamont is wear a novel belt of black patent leather, her initials forming the clasp.

A cluster of cellophane flowers, which look as though they were made of glass, is tucked into the collar of an evening wrap worn by Katharine Hepburn.

For beach wear, when the sun is too bright, Margot Grahame is wearing a hooded cloak styled similarly to the Arabian burnoose. The type of garment protect not only the body but the head and face, and is very becoming.

Seven-year-old Virginia Weidner carries a very useful beach bag when she goes to the shore to play. It is made of canvas and looks exactly like a large sand pail trimmed with nautical figures.

INFORMAL GARDEN FROCK

Ginger Rogers wears a delightful informal garden frock specially designed for her by Bernard Newman for her role opposite Fred Astaire in RKO Radio's "Top Hat." It is created of marine blue marquisette, worn over matching crepe, moulded to fit with skirt fullness gained by the use of large triangular gorges. The sleeves are heavily gathered at the wrists and shoulders and the neckline is ornamented with a cluster of white carnations and a box-pleated ruching of self-material. White grosgrain ribbon edges the top at the hem and at the Du Barry neck. A picture hat in transparent marine blue straw, the shallow crown banded in which grosgrain ribbon, white ruffled marquisette gloves and matching blue bag and shoes complete the ensemble.

SPECTATOR SPORTS ENSEMBLE

Cool, slim, smart, is the clever spectator sports ensemble selected by Maxine Jennings, RKO Radio player. This ensemble consists of a two-piece frock of white rough crepe and a three-quarter length coat of zephyr weight white homespun. The blouse has polished black buttons and belt buckle and pleats which are repeated in the skirt. The coat fastens at the tiny Chinese collar with a single cord frog. Sleeve fullness is gained by the use of shirring at the shoulder. Smartest of all is the white handbag of corded leather worn with the costume as is a white felt hat with a cuff brim, white string over and white shoes.

Lane Crawford.—Christmas Gifts this year seem more novel than ever, specially those to be seen in this store, and they have a very big variety. The Telephone and Engagement blocks are very attractive and most useful. Other novelties such as costume jewelry, evening bags, all beautifully fitted with mirror, comb purse and cigarette case, would make most useful gifts. In fact, there are such a lot of lovely things that the best advice is to pay the store a visit before buying any of your gifts.

Maizee's.—Have just unpacked a marvellous selection of Knit-Knart sport suits in many designs and shades. The suits are very smart and beautifully finished. Other new goods are some delightful evening bags, these are in the latest oval shape.

Reville.—Reville are showing a new shipment of very smart evening gowns in silks and velvets. The model in black crepe silk with very low back, and the new pleated skirt, was greatly admired.

Also some very smart coats and hats were included in this shipment.

Mayos.—Mayos have some very pretty dresses on display and a very nice shipment of new hats.

Gordons.—A new shipment of American shoes are on show now and the new white evening shoes, both in low and high heels, may be dyed to any shade required. Gordons prices remain the same for the present so one should take advantage of this offer.

IN HONOUR OF LADY ALICE SCOTT

First a rose, then a cocktail and now a sweet have been named after Lady Alice Scott. On the supper menu of the Battersea General Hospital Ball, at the Dorchester Hotel, on Oct. 16, there will be a Bombe Lady Alice.

At this dance the Royal bride will make her only appearance in public before her marriage.

During the evening Lady Alice will see her water-colour painting of Boughton House, Kettering, auctioned. It is a beautiful study of the lawns and trees, with the long, low, creeper-clad house in the background. This painting was exhibited in London in 1933, and bought by Lord Ernest Hamilton, who considers it is Lady Alice's best work.

MIXTURES AND PLAIDS

For fall tweeds, both mixtures and plaids, will be the big thing and Grace Bradley, who will next be seen in RKO Radio Pictures' "Old Man Rhythm," has just purchased her costume for the new season. It is a three piece cape ensemble in a black and white salt and pepper mixture, which looks like grey. The jacket the band trimming the cape are of a colourful plaid in black, white and scarlet. Most novel of all are the buttons on the jacket blouse—they're made of black patent leather to match the belt. Slippers worn with this outfit are grey suede.

SIMPLICITY KEYNOTE OF STREET ENSEMBLE

The smartness of Simplicity is the keynote of the interesting street ensemble, so perfect for warm dog days in town, which is the favourite frock of Florence Lake, popular RKO Radio comedienne. The frock ad hip-length jacket are of fine black lace. Wide crepe bindings edge the square neckline and band both frock and jacket at the sleeves and hem. Square rhinestone buttons at the corners of the square neckline are a decorative note. The hat is of transparent black haircloth, with a stitched cuff brim and worn with a delicate black net veil. All accessories are black leather.

MUFFS APPEAR IN PARIS

Many Surprises At A Dress Parade

A little white ermine barrel muff with a nosegay of flowers cut from felt in field colours to match a similar nosegay on the corsage is one of many attractive novelties produced by Paquin. The muff itself matched the ermine collar on a hip-length royal blue broadcloth cape worn with a gown of Royal blue tulle with inch lines of broadcloth to tone set in graduated rounds from waist to wide hemline.

Muffs appear also in Royal blue ostrich with a gown of light sapphire blue lamé with ostrich feather revers outlining the V opening of a back décolleté. Another muff is literally smothered with burnt orange velvet roses. The latter makes an interesting colour contrast to a graceful gown of slender bias cut in golden lamé shot with black, which is given a sable cape.

Appealing, too, in the slim line, short-trained sense, an evening gown of mat prune coloured velvet. Unlike the gown of lamé it is belted, but with the fabric, and a big scroll buckle of gold metal seems ordered, as it were, to match a long-sleeved semi-fitted waist-length bolero jacket of golden sequins.

A plain brown velvet suit shows the jacket on classic tailored line firmly closed. Beneath an ermine lined lace jabot. Imagine this suit completed by a blue fox capelet, the skins swaying in three rows from short waisted back and rising to point up in front, and when removed revealing the lace jabot as a surprise.

Another surprise is a checked tweed coat for wear with a chemisier frock tailored from one of the new dark shaded moiré fabrics. The shade filtering through gold for this slender line "chemisier".

NEW LIGHT on the Sleep Question

IT HAS now been demonstrated in an impartial and authoritative test that, of all food-drinks, Bourn-vita is unrivalled for digestive power.

The Revealing Result of a Remarkable Test

Here are authoritative figures showing the "digestive power" of Bourn-vita as compared with that of the other leading food-drinks. These figures are furnished by a famous Professor of Bio-chemistry, who has conducted an independent research into this important subject in the bio-chemical laboratories of one of the largest British universities, submitting all the food-drinks in question in the standard "diastatic value" test. "Diastase" is the scientific name given to the natural digestive which is found in malt.

RESULT OF TEST (Lintner Value)

Diastatic power of BOURN-VITA	48.4
Diastatic power of Next Highest	28.0
(Diastatic power of the lowest 22; the average of the eight tested being 12.1)

NOTE THE IMMENSE SUPERIORITY OF BOURN-VITA.

ERRORS IN STAMPS

Queen Victoria's Chignon

(Special Air Mail Service)

Philatelists the world over will feel grateful to the observant person who discovered that a peasant, on one of the Austrian stamps had his ears back to front. It is one of those unlucky mistakes soon forgotten by the stamp user but stored for ever in the memory of the stamp collector. Indeed the anonymous peasant may be assured that he will be quite as famous to one section of the community as the immortal Jenkins. His image will be handed round at stamp auctions and other places where philatelists are gathered together amid a reverent murmur of
"The Inverted Ear." Not perhaps that this could fairly be ranked with the great errors of the past,
like the two "penes" Mauritius,
and certainly not with that truly terrifying bird the West Australian black swan (Inverted). It even fades into insignificance before the absorbingly interesting subject of Queen Victoria's chignon, sadly neglected by her biographers, but over the intricacies of which philatelists have expended some of the best years of their lives.

ENGLISH STAMPS

In English stamps there have been very few really enjoyable errors. There have, it is true, been slips even in the twentieth century, but not great bold mistakes which even the uninitiated could enjoy. "No cross on crown"
—a very popular little omission
just before the War—could only be seen with a magnifying glass;
and the recipient of a letter in 1912 stamped with the rare outline scarlet penny would merely have thought the postman had been caught in the rain. Thousands of people must have bought penny halfpenny stamps with the "Penel" error and never been any the wiser. The Edwardians—always a favoured generation—had the choice of buying their stamps on or off chalk paper, but few can have known that the only way to tell chalk paper was by rubbing the stamp with a silver coin and seeing if a dirty mark was left behind. The Victorians courted mistakes by their partiality for sur-charging stamps. The Government of the day could only send their parcels (though what these valuable packages contained no philatelist has ever explained)
with stamps specially surcharged
"Government Parcels" or more cheaply but less beautifully
"Govt. Parcels." The possibilities of double surcharges, inverted surcharges, double inverted surcharges, and omitted stops were consequently infinite. The first stamps—now nearly one hundred years old—with the advice to the user in the margin of the sheet.
"In wetting the back be careful not to remove the cement," opened up an entirely new field for printer's slips and errors. Yet it is surprising how well they and their English successors have withstood the activities of the collector with his magnifying glass, benzine bottle, and watermark detecter, and how few serious mistakes have ever been found in them.

Marjory was visiting her Uncle
Frank, who had a very handsome Manx cat. She looked at it in a puzzled way, and finally got up and walked slowly around it.
"Well, Marjory," said Uncle
Frank, "how do you like Bobby?"
"I don't like it," replied Marjory,
"it isn't finished."

BIG ORDERS
FOR CLYDE

Fairfield to Build
Big Cruiser

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 25.
Naval contracts to the value of over £2,500,000 are to be placed with Clyde firms—a British cruiser with the Fairfield Shipbuilding and Engineering Company, Govan, and the machinery and boilers
for three Yugoslav destroyers with Yarrow and Co., Scotstoun. The cruiser contract will take two years to complete and will afford employment for upwards of 2,000 men.

The British Admiralty announce that, subject to the settlement of certain points of detail, they have decided to entrust the construction of the two "Southampton"
class cruisers of the 1935 programme to the Fairfield Shipbuilding and Engineering Company, Ltd., Govan, and Messrs
Hawthorn, Leslie and Co., Ltd.
Hebburn-on-Tyne.

At present the Clyde has two
"Southampton" class cruisers under construction—the Southampton at Messrs John Brown and Co.'s, Clydebank, and the Glasgow at Messrs Scott's Shipbuilding and Engineering Company, Ltd., Greenock.

The vessel to be built by the Fairfield Company will be similar to these vessels, having a displacement tonnage of about 9,000.
The total cost of the vessel amounts to about £2,000,000.

The Fairfield Company have two Admiralty vessels on hand—
the destroyers Garland and Gipsy
—and they recently completed
H.M.S. Woolwich, a large destroyer depot ship.

THE 1935 PROGRAMME
These two cruisers to be built by the Fairfield Company and Messrs Hawthorn, Leslie and Co.
respectively are the first vessels ordered under the Admiralty's 1935 programme.

Tenders have also been submitted for one flotilla leader and eight destroyers for that programme, and it is expected that the orders for these will be given out in the near future.

Other vessels to be built under the 1935 programme comprise three submarines, one submarine depot ship, four sloops (three mine-sweeping and one convoy sloop), one surveying ship, and seven small vessels (two coastal sloops, one small minelayer, two gate vessels, and two trawlers).

There will be three "Southampton" class cruisers in this programme.

MESSRS. YARROW'S ORDER
A large contract, which will mean work for Clydeside workers, was signed yesterday in Belgrade
between Messrs Yarrow and Co.,
Ltd., Scotstoun, and the Yugoslav Government.

The contract is for the boilers and machinery for three destroyers, and its value is over £500,000.
On the signature of the contract
the two Adriatic shipyards—that of Yarrow and Co. at Kraljevitza and that of the Chantiers De La Loire at Split become amalgamated.

The combined firm will build the hulls for the three destroyers and also several tankers, barges, and harbour craft. The total value of orders to be placed with the two firms is £1,200,000.
Following so closely on the £200,000 order for Rolls-Royce engines for aeroplanes placed recently by the Yugoslav Air Force, this contract is a sign of the growing importance of the Jugo-slav market for British industrial products. British firms are competing also for several further important contracts still under consideration in Yugoslavia.

WORK FOR SCOTSTOUN

The turbines, boilers and other accessories to the main propelling machinery for all three Yugoslav destroyers will be manufactured by Messrs Yarrow at Scotstoun.
The hulls will be built in Jugo-slavia.

Messrs. Yarrow have two British warships under construction—
H.M.S. Protector, a net-layer.
They recently completed a large naval contract for the Portuguese
Government.

It is expected that other warship orders will be placed on the Clyde in the near future by British and foreign Governments.

DEATH OF LADY
MOORE

Brave Service In
The War

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 25.
Lady Dorothea Moore, who died last night after a long illness at Moorestown, Tipperary, at the age of 46, showed remarkable bravery in the War, and appeared in the first award of Military Medals to women.

Born on October 6, 1889, the second daughter of the Earl of Denbigh, she was christened Dorothea Mary Evelyn. She was educated at home and at the Assumption Convent in Paris. A month after the outbreak of the War Lady Dorothea Fielding, as she then was, joined the Munro Motor Ambulance Corps, which was a Red Cross unit attached to the Belgian Field Army and also worked for the French. Her service continued until June, 1917.

The duty of the corps was to bring in wounded men from the firing line to the hospitals at the casualty clearing stations. For her work in removing wounded men in the neighbourhood of Ghent
and Dixmude, Admiral Ronarch, in command of the French Brigade of Fusiliers Marins, issued on December 31, 1914, a special order of the day, in which it was stated that she was "showing, almost every day, the finest example of devotion and of disregard for danger."

In addition to that the Admiral wrote her a letter in which he said that "all the men under his command would ever bear in remembrance 'la gracieuse ambulanciere' who had so often risked her life in their relief."

The award of the Military Medal to her in September, 1916, was a great honour. It was only in the previous June that it had been provided by Royal warrant that in exceptional circumstances on the special recommendation of a Commander-in-Chief in the field the award could be made to women. The announcement of the award to her for bravery and to five members of the Army Nursing Service appeared in a
"Supplement" of the "London Gazette" of September 1. Five days later Lady Dorothea was decorated by the King at Windsor Castle. The previous year she had received the Order of Leopold from the King of the Belgians for services to the Belgian wounded, and from the French Government
she received the Croix de Guerre.

Her service also earned for her
the 1914 Star, the British War Medal, and the Victory Medal.
Her marriage to Captain Joseph
Henry O'Hara Moore, M.C., Irish
Guards, of Moorestown, Co. Tipperary, took place on July 5, 1917.
In 1904, he succeeded his father, who had been created a Papal Count in 1879. There are one son and four daughters.

Farmer "McGregor" for the first time in his life saw a motor-car
the other day.

It whizzed past his horse but before he had recovered from his surprise a motor-cycle followed in his wake. "Well," cried McGregor,
"who'd a thought a thing like that wad have had a foal!"

CINEMA TRADE NOTICES

"DINKY"

Discipline in any form is not a particularly pleasant thing but it became a particularly unpleasant "Bitter cup" to the little cadets who accompanied Jackie Cooper to the San Diego Army and Navy Academy at Pacific Beach, Calif., for the filming of the new Warner Bros. picture, "Dinky," now showing at the Queen's Theatre.

Jackie Cooper and his fellow actors were drawn up on the parade ground going through a series of close order drills while the cameras were turning. Overhead a squadron of planes from the Marine Corps Station at North Island were participating in a practice "dog fight" now and then a pursuit ship would desert the formation, rise sharply five or six hundred feet above his command, and then following a rapid bank, would make a power dive downward at an imaginary enemy that was being towed a safe distance to the rear by a bomber.

"DANTE'S INFERNO"

One of the problems of the production of "Dante's Inferno," which comes on Sunday to the King's Theatre, was to develop a new method of applying make-up to the 13,000 extras, for in most cases their bodies had to be entirely painted and the effect of the paint was designed, not to bring out their beauty, but to make them seem tortured and weary.

After several weeks of study, Tony Karnagel, the studio make-up wizard, emerged with an entirely new technique.

"Make-up," Karnagel says, "is an art. It consists of analyzing the characteristics of a face and then applying the proper make-up, so that the camera will reveal the features and characters that are actually present. For the camera, it may be necessary to minimize or emphasize certain features, but the fundamental principle is to make-up a face so as to reveal its true individuality. That requires the trained eye of a portrait painter, as well as technical skill."

"LOVE ME FOREVER"

Preview critics and other privileged to attend private showings of "Love Me Forever" claim that the latter picture is even greater than "One Night of Love." Aside from its larger cast, its variety of background, and its number of beautiful and impressive sets to bear out their statements.

Many are of the opinion that Miss Moore's voice is even more beautiful than before. Columbia Studios, recipients of the award from the Society of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences for sound recording, state that new methods of recording have been employed which bring out qualities in Miss Moore's voice, not heard in "One Night of Love."

EVERY NIGHT AT 8

The Boswell Sisters, the Bronx Sisters, the Pickens Sisters and many other trics of girl singers have attained popularity on the air waves, the stage and on the screen.

The careers, adventures and love affairs of three world famous, singing sisters have been used and glorified in Walter Wanger's Paramount picture, "Every Night at Eight," coming soon to the Queen's Theatre.

The story centres around three girls, Alice Faye, Frances Langford and Patsy Kelly, switch-board operator, stenographer and bottle packer in a mint julep factory. They have convinced themselves that as a harmony singing trio they are better than the Boswell Sisters. Having lost their jobs they enter an amateur radio contest hoping to win a prize. However, George Raft, leader of an amateur orchestra wins the prize, but takes them under his wing after he hears them sing. Under Raft's direction the three girls climb to the top of fame's ladder as radio stars known the world over as the

At School

(Special Air Mail Service)

During the past 10 years, the Scottish Education Department has played a leading part in the fostering of physical education in the schools. The campaign to prevent excessive mental labour and to ensure a decent measure of health has been well received, inasmuch as it has been in accord with the general trend of opinion and practice throughout the country. Only recently there was held in London a large meeting under the auspices of a newly created body, the Central Council of recreative Physical Education, at which there were represented not only official educational bodies but a wide variety of voluntary organisations, all of them bent on instilling in the mind of the nation a sense that good health and recreation could go hand in hand and that physical education did not necessarily mean large biceps, prominently developed chests, and all the other outward signs of what is, in some quarters, known as the consequence of "physical culture." It would be unfortunate, accordingly, if the speech made a few days ago at Falkirk by the Secretary to the Scottish Education Department were to be understood to convey the idea that physical training, as the Department understands the term, is going to excess.

THE "HEARTY"

Clearly nothing was further from the intention of the responsible spokesman of the Department. What Sir William McKelvie objected to was the undue adulation given to the brawny individual at schools and Universities known, in the terminology of to-day, as the "hearty." He issued what seems to be a timely warning that there is a danger lest the intellectual pupil who does not happen to have either the aptitude or the physique for strenuous games should be regarded as of little account. Surely all that is needed here is a sense of proportion. The fact is that the University product who is all brain and no brawn will probably find himself in the harsh world beyond the University precincts, of little value. But it is also becoming increasingly the case that the intellectual product of the Universities, who cannot, in interview, present himself as manly or bearing, clear and decisive of speech, healthy in the proper sense of the word, may also find himself out in the cold. It is to ensure a decent mean between mental and physical life that the wisest efforts are to-day being directed, and it would be unfortunate if there existed any misapprehension of what is a perfectly reasonable and realisable ideal.

Peerage and a Lordship of Appeal as Baron Carson of Duncalm. In November, 1920, he resigned his office of Lord of Appeal in Ordinary, and he was granted an annuity of £2750 for life. Carson's success at the Bar was phenomenal, and by 1899 he was earning £20,000 a year and was refusing briefs worth £30,000. He married, first, Miss Sara Annette Kirwan, daughter of Mr. H. P. Kirwan, of Galway. She died in 1910, leaving two sons and three daughters. Four years later he married Miss Ruby Frewen, daughter of Colonel Stephen Frewen, and they had one son.

MR. BALDWIN'S
OVERTUREDiffidence In Rome

London, Oct. 23.

Sir Eric Drummond to-day visited Signor Savich, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs. In this connexion it was pointed out to-night in authoritative Italian circles that, while the Anglo-Italian conversations are continuing, there is no question as yet of the actual discussion of texts of any kind. The conversations, it was added, are of a general character, the desire of both sides being clarification.

Further examination of Mr. Baldwin's speech has not done much to dissipate that diffidence and reserve with which the British assurances given at the end of last week have been received. A more courteous tone may be observed in the references to Great Britain, and there seems to be a real wish to be convinced that the British attitude in Geneva is not dictated by hostility to Italy. When, however, this modicum of relief from the tension of the last few weeks has been recorded, it has to be acknowledged that Italian opinion will require some additional assurances and, above all, concrete facts before Great Britain ceases to be regarded with suspicion and distrust.

FRIENDSHIP FOR 'ITALY'

Mr. Baldwin's words of friendship for Italy are again contrasted with the British naval activity in the Mediterranean, and the fact that no corresponding military measures have been taken by any other member of the League is held to invalidate Great Britain's pacific assurances. The reluctance professed by Great Britain at having to take part in drawing up economic and financial measures of coercion is found by one critic not to square with the fact that, alone among the members of the League, the British Government prepared in advance a programme of sanctions to be imposed upon the League, thus obtaining indirectly the application of that Article XVI which is inapplicable to the Abyssinian conflict.

Many other grievances are brought up. The catalogue ranges from alleged arrests and expulsions of Italian citizens from British territory to Mr. Eden's proposal for a boycott on Italian exports. One point which is particularly seized upon is the Prime Minister's denial of any plan to overthrow the Fascist regime. The declaration is greeted as highly important and timely, not only for the definition of Anglo-Italian relations but also for Great Britain, Geneva, and all Europe. Does this, it is asked, indicate a change of heart? The passage in last Friday's leading article in The Times justifying precautionary measures by the human figures dominate an intensely human theme—but the clash is actually that of the ideas they represent.

Topping the cast is John Beal, whose work in "The Little Minister," opposite Katharine Hepburn, is described as sensational, and who is said to soar to new heights in "Laddie." Also featured are Gloria Stuart, playing the "Princess," and Charlotte Henry as a sister of Laddie. And the rest of the familiar characters of the book are also in the most expert, his-

ROYAL AIR
FORCERe-Enlistment And Promotion

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 25.

In order to remove any misapprehension among serving airmen, an assurance is given in Air Ministry Orders that the rate of promotion of such airmen will not be affected adversely by the re-enlistment of ex-airmen, pensioners, and reservists in their old ranks under the expansion scheme.

The additional requirements of non-commissioned and warrant officers consequent on the expansion will be largely in excess of the number of re-enlisted non-commissioned and warrant officers. Re-enlistment is to be for a period of four years, in the rank of aircraftman, second class, followed by promotion on the day after re-enlistment to the rank or classification held on discharge or transfer to the Reserve.

On their discharge or transfer to reserve after the four years, the following gratuities will be issuable instead of the ordinary discharge gratuity of £1 for each year of service:—Airmen, mustered in Group I, £150; Group II, £100; and other groups, except Group V, £75. Gratuities under this order will not be payable to re-enlisted pensioners, who will be allowed to draw their pension in addition to full pay. In no circumstances will service under this engagement give entitlement to service pension or any increase in the rate of pension already being paid.

GOVERNMENT AND NATION.

Mr. Baldwin's references to dictatorship before the Conservative conference is recalled as illustrating that an anti-Fascist interpretation may well be given to those references.

BORN IN DUBLIN.

Though the stuck to Ulster through thick and thin, he was not an Ulsterman. He was born in Dublin in 1854. His father, of a Galway family, was an architect—a profession the son wished to follow. Instead he became a barrister and after graduating at Trinity College he was called to the Irish Bar in 1877.

Ten years later the opportunity came for him to make his mark in Irish affairs. In 1887 the Perpetual Emancipation Act was passed. By his part in the hundreds of prosecutions which followed Carson earned his first nickname, "Coercion Carson."

He was later knighted, appointed Solicitor-General for Ireland, and returned to Parliament as Unionist member for Dublin University.

LORD CARSON'S

Oppose Home Rule

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 23.

Lord Carson of Duncalm, the distinguished Irish lawyer and politician, died yesterday morning at his home, Cleve Court, Minister, Isle of Thanet, at the age of 81.

He had been ill for some time with chronic leukaemia—a diseased condition of the blood. Lady Carson was at the bedside when Lord Carson died. Their eldest son, the Hon. Walter Seymour, and their married daughter, the Hon. Mrs. G. W. Chesterman, were there also.

Lord Carson was created a life Baron in 1921 with the title of Baron Carson of Duncalm, Co. Antrim. With his death the title becomes extinct.

The funeral arrangements are in the hands of Lord Craigavon. It has been arranged that Lord Carson's remains will be taken to Ulster and that the funeral, which will be with State honours, will take place at Belfast on Saturday.

A Bill to enable the body of Lord Carson to be buried in the Cathedral and Parish Church of St. Anne was passed through all its stages in Ulster House of Commons yesterday.

It was his second illness in twelve months. He had made a remarkable recovery last July from bronchial pneumonia, and in August was able to leave his home for a short motor drive in the country.

STORMY LIFE.

Lord Carson, had as stormy a career as any British politician in recent history. His greatest struggle was undoubtedly in the cause of Ulster. For many years he waged it, and in the end—as his followers have claimed and his opponents regretfully admitted—he won it.

So the title of "Champion of Ulster" remained when the many nicknames conferred on him in the earlier days of the long and bitter Irish controversy had faded from public memory. He is said to have been known as the "man with a hundred nicknames." Three of them were "Coercion Carson," "Rebel Carson," and "King Carson." But even these terms, uttered in hatred by his opponents, were regarded by his friends as containing a large of tribute.

Lord Carson himself, at the unveiling of his statue in front of the new Parliament Buildings of Northern Ireland by Viscount Craigavon, the Prime Minister, in July, 1933, said: "Yes, I admit we were rebels. We were rebels to those who were rebels to the King."

He was later knighted, appointed Solicitor-General for Ireland, and returned to Parliament as Unionist member for Dublin University.

The old order of things is arrayed against the new gospel of the nobility of honest toil in "Laddie," RKO-Radio Picture, based on the famous Gene Stratton-Porter novel. It's an epic story of American courage and manhood and industry, into which is threaded one of fiction's greatest romances—the love of Laddie for "Princess," the pretty English girl from overseas.

Laddie and his parents typify the spirit of America. The girl and her nobleman father symbolize the age-old traditions of aristocracy. In the picture, as in the classic novel, among the best sellers of the last sixty years,

CABLES "SINGAPORE"

Around the Courts

Li Wing, 39, unemployed, was charged before Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday with possessing an illicit still and apparatus at No. 242 Reclamation Street, second floor; possession of 20 gallons of fermenting material; and possession of 3 gallons of dutiable Chinese spirits.

Revenue-Officer A. W. Grimmit prosecuted and stated that the still was large enough to distill 14 to 15 gallons of spirits a day, on which about $20 duty could be charged. The still was new and was actually working at the time of the raid.

On the first two charges fines of $200 each, or, in default, three months' hard labour were imposed; and on the last a fine of $10, or 14 days, was imposed. Sentences to run concurrent.

On being fined defendant said, "According to your Worship's powers you cannot fine me so much on the second charge, because I did not have much material."

Defendant admitted that he had ten to twenty cetties of fermenting material.

His Worship stated that he imposed such a heavy fine in order to deter people from doing this sort of thing. "You can appeal against it if you like," he added.

Lo Tung, boatman, was charged before Mr. W. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy yesterday, with having assaulted another boatman. Lam Hung, on board cargo boat No. 3344V at Jardine Wharf, on November 12. It was alleged that when the defendant was trying to leave the wharf in his boat, the tide was against him, and as he attempted to turn the boat it collided with the complainant's boat. The complainant then alleged that the defendant rushed on to his boat and struck him with chopper while the defendant alleged that the complainant came to his boat and struck him with an iron bar. Both men were bound over in personal bonds of $50 each to keep the peace for one year.

Admitting the theft of a pair of leather slippers from No. 208 Des Voeux Road Central, Ho Ying-nam, 22-year-old unemployed, was sentenced to one month's hard labour by Mr. Macfadyen at the Central Police Court yesterday. Sub-Inspector Tyler stated that defendant went into the shop and inspected several pairs of slippers. He eventually selected one pair and while the shopkeeper's attention was distracted, defendant slipped out of the shop with the slippers under his jacket. He was arrested by a constable when the slippers fell out.

Lau Kau, unemployed, was sentenced to eight months' hard labour by Mr. W. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy yesterday, on a charge of having returned from banishment before the expiration of his term of ten years received in July last year. Defendant was arrested in Des Voeux Road West.

An Indian Police constable, Mohamed Ishaq, appeared before Mr. S. F. Balfour, at the Central Magistracy yesterday, charged with having obtained bribe of $2 from Chan Chan at Hollywood Road on October 30 with a view to influencing him in the performance of his duty as a Government servant. Mr. J. M. D'Almada Remedios appeared for the defendant, and asked that a date be fixed for the hearing of the case. Mr. Balfour remanded defendant until 2.30 p.m. on November 20, bail being allowed in $200.

Several banishers appeared before Mr. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy yesterday, each charged with committing a breach of the Deportation Ordinance. Leung Sang, aged 24, who was banished for a period of 10 years on May 23 this year, was sentenced to six months' hard labour. A similar sentence was imposed on Ko Cheung, who admitted returning from his term of five years' banishment. He was banished on October 22 last. Another banishers, Cheung Ping, aged 26, who was banished for 10 years on December 24, 1934, was remanded for one week for further inquiries to be instituted.

Two men, Yeung Or-ling, aged 32, described as a "boy," and Yuen Or-chuen, aged 48, cook, were charged before Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday with possession of 190 tals of raw opium on board the s.s. Tai Yuan yesterday.

First accused pleaded guilty and second accused denied the charge.

Detective-Sergeant Riddell, prosecuting, stated that the prosecution would accept the pleas as they stood. Both defendants were employed as cooks on board the steamer; the first accused was the assistant of the second. The opium was found in a basket of vegetables which first defendant had.

Second accused was discharged and a fine of $3,800, with the alternative of nine months' hard labour, was imposed upon the first.

LORD DAWSON ON STERILISATION

Elimination Of The Unfit

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 25.
A striking plea for the sterilisation of certain of the unfit was made by Lord Dawson of Penn in a lecture to the York Medical Society yesterday.

He said that civilisation, having in a large measure nullified nature's methods of eliminating the unfit, needed to replace those methods by social determination in two directions:

(1) Methods of nurture to build up fit citizens, having regard to their biological capacities;
(2) Means whereby the "unfit" can prevent damage to the community by their production of bad stock and bad homes.

FOOD VALUES

Concerning the first, he suggested a missionary campaign to teach housewives the values of essential food stuffs and knowledge of their purchase and cooking, gymnasia in the elementary schools, and provision for play centres outside school hours.

There were 6,000,000 children in the elementary schools in 1913. In 1937 there would be 5,000,000. As we had a smaller assortment, we depended on the building of quality.

With regard to the need for sterilisation, Lord Dawson instanced the case of a woman whom he called "X," of whom he said: "Her father and mother were within the normal, but they must have been carriers, for the paternal grandfather was feeble-minded, two great-uncles were insane, and a maternal uncle was epileptic."

"X" had two illegitimate children, both of whom died of convulsions. She then had 10 children born in wedlock; of these three died, nine were mental defectives, and one son and one daughter appeared normal, but were probably carriers.

"How long would it be before 1,000 defectives resulted from this strain? This woman was not incompetent to look after her daily needs."

"If she had been segregated to prevent further procreation, that would have been a deprivation of individual liberty greater than that involved in sterilisation, and at a greater cost to the community."

ADVICE, NOT COMPULSION

What chance, asked Lord Dawson, had the children of such unions to make good? In days past this racial situation was helped by a high mortality among inferior children. It was much less—and decreasingly so—now. Sterilisation imposed no change in sex life. It would be advised with a sense of responsibility. The advice would be accepted, not, with possible exceptions, imposed.

The practice of sterilisation was not new. It had been in use in Switzerland for nearly 50 years, and in California and certain other States for a long period. It was now recognised in Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Finland and Germany as a means of preventing hereditary physical and mental defects from damaging the stock and doing injustice to future generations.

The consent of the patient was needed. Explanation, and, if need be, persuasion, were employed, but not compulsion, except in a few scheduled exceptions.

In any legislation a "contracting out" clause to meet the case of any patient whose religious convictions were against sterilisation would be just and wise.

CLAIM FOR WAGES DUE

Printer Wins Case

Before Mr. Q.A.A. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy yesterday, Wong Sai Ho, manager of the Wan Nam Printing Press was summoned by his former employee, Chu Fat-ki who claimed $8.65 being wages due to him.

Mr. C. D'Almada e Castro appeared for the defence.

Complainant's case was that he was a stone polisher, and on October 20 last he was working with defendant. He was carrying a piece of stone and broke it as he slipped. He was told by defendant that he had to replace it and the value of it was $40. Complainant refused and he was dismissed from defendant's service and the wages due him, the amount of $8.65 was not paid to him. Defendant had signed an agreement in which it was stated that any employee breaking any article was to pay for it.

Mr. D'Almada submitted that the complainant was careless in handling the piece of stone and he was therefore asked to replace it. Instead of taking it at the right spirit, he left and two days later came back to the shop and claimed his wages and said that he would not compensate for the piece of stone. Mr. D'Almada went on that his client withheld complainant's wages for compensation of the piece of stone and he did not dismiss him.

After evidence was given by both parties, His Worship gave judgment for the plaintiff.

SOCIETY WEDDING

Duke Of Roxburghe

And Lady M.
Crewe-Milnes

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 25.

The Queen, who wore a grey velvet dress and coat trimmed with grey fox fur and a grey velvet faded toque finished with a tuft of grey ostrich feathers at the side, was present yesterday at the reception held by the Marquess of Crewe after the marriage of her daughter, Lady Mary Evelyn Hungerford Crewe-Milnes, to the Duke of Roxburghe.

Both the Duke and Lady Mary are god-children of her Majesty.

The Duke of Kent was also a guest at the reception.

The marriage took place in Westminster Abbey, with the Archbishop of York officiating, assisted by Archdeacon Storr and the Rev. H. E. Stevens.

The Marquess of Crewe gave his daughter away. Her wedding dress of chalk-white tulle was cut on princess lines, with gaugings from the deep V-neck to the hip-line. The long, rounded train was cut in one with the dress, and the sleeves were long and close-fitting. A jewelled clip was fastened at one side of the corsage and was the only trimming. From a halo headdress of silver tissue and orange-blossom fell a long full tulle veil. The bouquet carried by Lady Mary was of arum, tiger, and lily-of-the-valley, with lilies-of-the-valley, and was presented by N.C.O.s and men of "B" Squadron of the Royal Horse Guards, the bridegroom's regiment. The trainbearers were Lord Primrose, who was dressed in a flame-velvet suit with a sash of gold lamé, and two little girls—Lady Elizabeth Fitzmaurice and Miss Morna Burton. They wore long short-waisted frocks of flame velvet with wreaths of red and gold flowers. There were 12 bridesmaids—Lady Anne Cavendish-Bentley, Lady Katharine Howard, the Hon. Jacqueline Vereker, the Hon. Lavinia Strutt, Miss Ruth Primrose, Miss Elizabeth Coates, Miss Leonora Baring, Miss Ursula Wyndham, Miss Beatrice and Miss Rosemary Grosvenor, Miss Jean Innes-Ker, and Miss Margaret Stirling. Their dresses of flame-red chiffon velvet and tulle drapery at the side, and the hems were bound with rouleaux of the velvet. Their headresses were of flame-coloured net with gold and silver cellophane leaves. They carried sheaves of the same flowers. The best man was Mr. Arthur Collins, cousin of the bridegroom. Corporal-major and N.C.O.s of the Royal Horse Guards formed a guard of honour.

INFRINGEMENT OF TRADE MARK ALLEGED

Full Court Dismisses Magistrate's Findings

A case of great importance to retailers and wholesalers having registered trade marks put on their wares was decided at the Appeal Court yesterday, by the Chief Justice, Sir Atholl Macgregor, and the Puisne Judge, Mr. Justice R. E. Lindell.

The appeal was against the Magistrate's decision when he dismissed a summons brought by the United States Drug Store against the Sino-German Dispensary for alleged infringement of a trade mark.

The summons against the Sino-German Dispensary in the Lower Court was for selling medicine to which a trade mark so nearly resembling complainant's trade mark "Senkesin" as to be calculated to deceive, had been falsely applied.

Mr. Eldon Potter, K.C., instructed by the Hon. Mr. M. K. Lo, appeared for the appellants, the United States Drug Store; and Mr. Hin Shing Lo, instructed by Mr. J. M. Hall, was for the respondent the Sino-German Dispensary.

Giving judgment, the Chief Justice said:—

"In this case the complainant appellant instituted proceedings by summons against the defendant respondent for that he did sell goods, namely medicine, to which a mark so nearly resembling a trade mark as to be calculated to deceive was falsely applied, contrary to the provisions of section 3 (2) of the Merchandise Marks Ordinance, 1930.

At the close of the complainant's case the magistrate adopted a submission made by learned counsel for the defendant, and held that on the evidence there was no case to answer. He therefore discharged the defendant, but granted the appellant leave to appeal on fact and also stated a case for the determination of this Court pursuant to section 100 of the Magistrates Ordinance, 1932.

The material facts as found by the magistrate can be stated very shortly. The appellant is the registered proprietor of a trade mark for medicine, which mark consists of three Chinese characters, under which in English lettering appears the word Senkesin.

On June 3, 1935 an illiterate woman visited the shop of the defendant intending to purchase a packet of Senkesin, but in fact purchased a packet of another patent medicine which bore a mark consisting of three Chinese characters and the English letters Sanklin.

The first two characters of this mark are identical with the first two in the registered trade mark.

The general "get up" of the packet purchased differs widely from the "get up" of the packet in which the registered preparation is marketed.

REGISTRATION REFUSED

There was also evidence that registration of Sanklin as a trade mark had been refused by the Registrar. His Lordship then went on quoting relevant provisions of the Ordinance, and continuing he said:—

"Two other provisions may conveniently be cited at this point, for reasons which will be apparent in the course of this judgment.

2. (1) f "Trade mark" means a trade mark registered in the Register of Trade Marks kept under any Ordinance; and

4. A person shall be deemed to forge a trade mark who either: (1) without assent of the proprietor of the trade mark, makes that trade mark or a mark so nearly resembling that trade mark as to be calculated to deceive; or

(2) falsified any genuine trade mark, whether by alteration, addition, effacement, or otherwise; and any trade mark or mark so made or falsified is in this Ordinance referred to as a forged trade mark; Provided that, in any prosecution for forging a trade mark, the burden of proving the assent of the proprietor shall lie on the defendant.

MAGISTRATE'S FINDINGS

The magistrate has stated his case at considerable length and with obvious care, but a careful perusal of the case stated and of the judgment of the magistrate in the court below makes it clear that the magistrate based his conclusion to which he came on three broad grounds:—

(1) He found as a fact that the alleged infringing mark was not sufficiently similar to the registered mark to be calculated to deceive;

(2) In so finding he took into consideration not only the appearance and sound of the two marks but the "get up" of the packets; and

(3) He held that in proceedings under the Ordinance "mens rea" on the part of the defendant, was an essential ingredient and that he was entitled to dismiss the information without calling upon the defendant because he was satisfied that there was no intention to defraud or deceive.

I propose to deal first with the second point.

The law is stated in a nutshell. "Whether the mark used by the defendant is an imitation of the plaintiff's mark is of course a pure question of fact, and therefore reference to former decisions is usually of little value. The one question to be decided is whether or not the registered mark has been imitated. If it has been, the fact that the get-up is otherwise entirely different is no defence, and if it has not been, similarity in other respects will not help the plaintiff. Nevertheless, in doubtful cases the court does consider whether, in addition to there being similarity in the mark, a similar get-up has also been adopted with a view to increasing the probability of confusion."

"Get up" is no part of the registered trade mark. It can be changed at will and the magistrate in finding, as he did on this point, has in our judgment misdirected himself.

As regards the first point we are of opinion that the world-marks which we have to consider are so similar as to entitle the complainant to succeed if he had taken civil action against the defendant for infringement. Of the three Chinese characters in each mark the two first are identical, and the sound of the last differs only in the initial consonant "S" in one case and "L" in the other. The English equivalent differs only in two respects, the last syllable has a different initial consonant, and the vowels in the two first syllables are different, this latter being caused merely by an arbitrary divergence in the transliteration of the same Chinese characters.

MENS REA

Turning now to the third point it seems to be clear that the magistrate was influenced by the consideration that these proceedings were criminal in their nature. The complainant in fact was seeking the protection which is statutorily accorded to him, and the fact that the remedy is penal does not mean that a complaint cannot succeed unless the defendant is proved to have had a guilty mind. Several statements both in the judgment and in the case stated show conclusively that the magistrate's decision proceeded largely on the assumption that the forgery and falsity to which the relevant sections refer necessarily connoted the existence of mens rea and intent to defraud or deceive. From the provisions of the statute which have been already cited it is clear that this is not so. The Ordinance explicitly defines what it means by forging a mark or falsely applying a mark and in proceedings under the Ordinance these words and phrases must be given that restricted meaning and no other.

Learned counsel for the respondent has confined his argument to the contention that the word Senkesin and the appropriate Chinese characters are not invented words but words of ordinary meaning. From that contention he proceeds to the submission that the word mark should never have been registered.

However interesting, and possibly successful such a contention might have been had these proceedings taken another form, it is not tenable on this appeal by reason of the definition of "trade mark" in the Ordinance which we have already quoted.

MAGISTRATE WRONG

In our opinion the magistrate came to a wrong conclusion in law and in fact. There appears clearly to be a prima facie case made out against the defendant respondent, and we therefore propose to call upon him to make his

HOW TWO HUNGRY MEN FOUND FOOD

A Meal And A Fight

Necessity knows no law, it is said, and this old adage was carried out by two coolies when they forcibly took away the food of other coolies and made a hearty meal of it. This action alone was enough to raise the ire of the luckless ones who were compelled to go hungry for the day, but when the two bullies took to assaulting them, it became a case of adding insult to injury.

This sad, but somewhat humorous story was related to Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy yesterday, when the two "wolfish" ones were charged with assault.

Evidence brought out by the police was to the effect that the men, who rejoiced in the names of Cheung Kin and Lam Yeung Ti, were once earth coolies in the employ of a building contractor. Their offence against the law must have been copied from the pages of their employer's book for it was stated that the contractor, after having drawn a portion of the money agreed for certain work to be done, decamped. With his quick exit from the Colony, the poor workmen were left stranded.

FOOD IN PLENTY

There were, about ten of them in the same plight, and they went on living in the same makeshift which their erstwhile but defaulting master had built for them. Sometime later, five of the coolies obtained employment.

The fortunate ones were living lavishly; that is, according to a coolie's standard, but the jobless ones had to look on and to silt their hunger with the wish that something better might turn up. This went on for some time, but the gnawing of the inner men called out for action, with the result that when food was brought to the coolies who were able to pay for it, Cheung and Kin did exactly the same thing as it is done in the United States of the Soviet Republic. They helped themselves to the food, and when being remonstrated with, took up a pick axe and set to.

One of the men was so badly wounded that he had to be taken to the hospital and was there for quite a long time. "I have nothing to say. I am a poor coolie, and your Worship could hardly believe that I am the kind of man to steal food and fight other men," blandly said one of them.

"I am in your Worship's hands," said the other.

The Magistrate sentenced the second man to six weeks' hard labour, where he will have plenty to eat, and the first man was bound over to keep the peace. What he is going to do about his food, will be another matter.

VOTES FOR MORE MONEY PASSED

New Territory Defence Queried

Votes totalling $27,730 were passed by the Finance Committee of the Legislative Council at a Meeting held yesterday at the Council Board Room.

An item for $1,400 for Public Works Recurrent in the New Territories for the erection of turrets at Sheung Shui and Au Tau Police Stations was strongly opposed by the Hon. Sir William Shenton on grounds that it was neither necessary or warranted. A debate then took place after which a vote was taken. It was finally passed with the exception of one dissentient. It was, however, resolved that an inquiry is to be instituted as soon as possible into the boundaries of the New Territories.

The Hon. Mr. D. W. Trautman, the Colonial Secretary presided while others present were: the Hon. Mr. Edwin Taylor (Colonial Treasurer), the Hon. Mr. R. M. Henderson (Director of Public Works), the Hon. Sir Henry Pollock Kt., K.C.

Hon. Sir William Shenton
Hon. Dr. S. W. T'so
Hon. Mr. J. P. Braga, O.B.E.
Hon. Mr. J. J. Paterson
Hon. Mr. T. N. Chau
Hon. Mr. W. H. Bell
Hon. Mr. M. K. Lo
Mr. H. R. Butters (Deputy Clerk of Council)

The following votes were passed:—

Two votes of $9,500 each for Public Works Extraordinary, Hong Kong Port Works Extension of Recreational at North Point and the Construction of Seawall and Cattle Pier at Kennedy Town.

$3,000 for Defence "A" Volunteer Defence Corps—Uniforms including boots.

$2,000 for the maintenance of Praya Walls and Piers.

$1,400 for Public Works Recurrent, New Territories, for the construction of turrets at Sheung Shui and Au Tau Police Stations.

$1,200 for the Medical Department for the maintenance of lunatics in Canton.

$500 for Defence "A" Volunteer Defence Corps allowance to Officers and N. C.O.s, undergoing training in England.

$300 for the Sanitary Department Animal Depots and Slaughter Houses incidental expenses.

$200 for the Medical Department for Transport of probationary nurses and dressers to attend lectures at the G.C.H. and $130 for Convoyance allowance for the Medical Department in connection with animalarial work in Kam Tin.

UNNECESSARY AND UNWARRANTED

In asking the council to pass the vote of $1,400 for the erection of turrets at the two Police Stations the chairman the Hon. Mr. Trautman explained that before the vote be cast he could like to say that at a previous meeting of the council this same vote was put forward but was not quite understood. He said that the erections of the turrets instead of the fences would be in case of attack afford the personal protection. They would be given the opportunity of defending themselves and in case of the invaders attacking the premises they would be able to come out. He then related the incident of the attempt at Sheung Shui sometime back when one man killed another there. The erection of these turrets would afford the police the chance of keeping at a distance from the attackers.

Sir William Shenton in opposing the vote said that the Council had already approved of a new Police Station at Takuling on the border and had substantially increased the Police Personnel by 2 Europeans and 24 Indians. Miles of barbed wires had also been voted for. These should all prove sufficient to protect Sheungshui. The attack of the Police Station was an isolated incident as in the former days when the boycott was at its height such protection was then deemed unnecessary. Should trouble occur near the border there was the strong customs border forces which was only a stone's throw away. Should these turrets be necessary for these two stations, Sir William asked, what about such places like Salung, Shatankok, Pingshan, Cheung Chau and Tai-O which were all in the heart of the New Territories whose development there in the near future make the vote ridiculous.

"If we have reached this position then the proper consideration is for the defence of the inhabitants and not the Police Station," added Sir William Shenton who concluded by saying that the vote

MISS BERGNER'S NEW ROLE

David In The Bible Story

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 24. —Elizabeth Bergner will play the young David in the Bible story in the new play which Sir James Barrie has written for her.

A hint of the Viennese star's new role was given by Peterborough in "The Daily Telegraph" yesterday.

I learn that Sir James's theme is David and Goliath, and that Miss Bergner will have to slay the champion of the Philistines "with a sling and with a stone," in the words of the First Book of Samuel.

There has been the closest secrecy about the play, for Mr. Charles B. Cochran, who is presenting it, told me some time ago that Sir James had requested that not even the title should be published.

In the Bible story David is disdained by Goliath, who "looked about" and saw "but a youth, and ruddy, and of a fair countenance." With her slim figure and fair hair, and aided by a ruddy make-up, Miss Bergner will fit the Bible description admirably.

Except for "Barbara's Wedding," a short play done at the Savoy in 1927, the new play is Sir James Barrie's first work for the theatre since "Mary Rose," which was first produced at the Haymarket in April, 1920. It was one of his most successful plays, and the piece has been revived twice since that date.

The interest in the new play is enormous. It will be presented by Mr. Cochran, according to present arrangements, first in Edinburgh, early in February next, and afterwards in London. The theatrical event will be one of the most important for years.

NAVAL APPOINTMENTS

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 24.

The following appointments were made by the Admiralty yesterday: Cdr.—T. M. Napier, to Drake (October 28).

Lt.-Cdr.—C. L. Edwards, to Drake (October 23); and H. C. Woolrych, to Pembroke (October 24).

Surgn. Lt.-Cdr.—J. G. Currie, to Ganges, for R.N. Sick Quarters, Shotley (October 24).

Lt.—I. G. Steel, to Dryad (October 23).

Cd. Gunners.—J. W. Ferns (T), to Vernon (October 23); and S. Brock, to Newcastle (November 5).

Senior Master.—A. Petty, to Galatea (November 1).

Schoolmaster (C.W.O.).—T. J. Williams, to Despatch (November 1).

Gunner.—W. B. J. Harding, to Curlew (November 1).

was neither necessary or warranted.

Hon. Mr. Paterson. "The peace posters hung on wire there may melt the hearts of the hard-hearted bandits" (laughter).

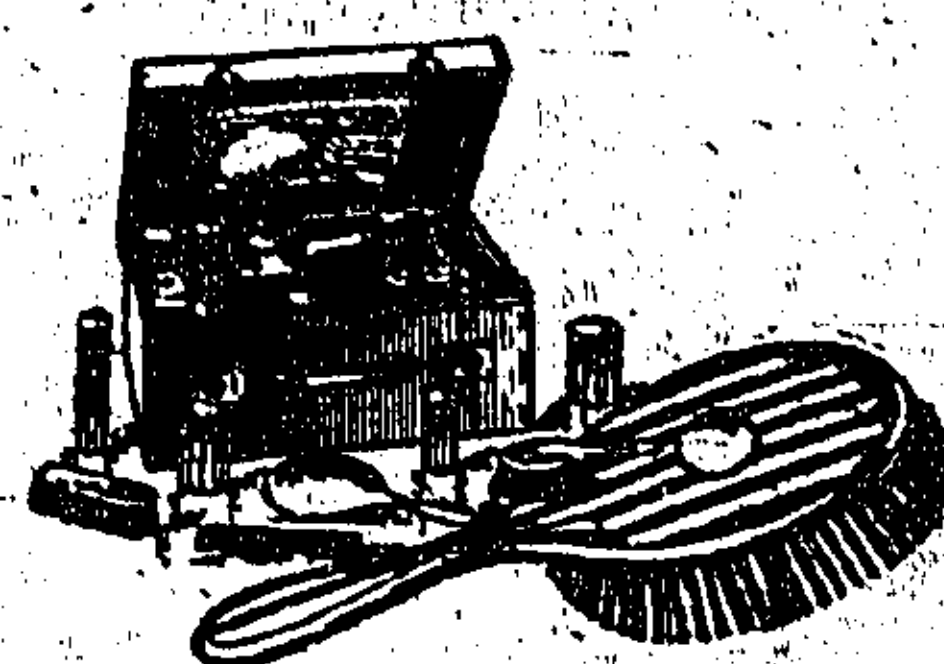

The Hon. Mr. Trautman then explained that these turrets were necessary because it afforded the Police easy exit and entry when attacked. Moreover they will not be exposed to gunfire as otherwise if they have to come through the open to the fences.

The Hon. Mr. Braga said that he personally believed that Sir William Shenton was labouring under a false sense of economy. The security of the Police for the defence of the territory was essential and he had on good authority that the reason why so many people were loath to live there was the serious state of insecurity created by the prevalence of banditry and the uncertain condition of China.

The Hon. Mr. Bell asked whether steps should be taken to inquire into the state of affairs there.

The Hon. Mr. Lo in supporting that the vote be passed said that it was a small amount, and because it was for the security of the public and police alike it should be passed.

A vote was then taken and it was passed with the exception of one dissentient (Sir William Shenton). It was also passed that the Government should inquire into the matter as soon as possible.

"CERTAIN EMPIRE"

In a special message to this paper by the "Transocean Agency," published elsewhere in this issue, reference was made to "Certain Empire" which had made use of the League to further its own aims. This statement was made by an Italian speaker at a meeting held at Brussels denouncing sanctions.

It is clear that the "Certain Empire" referred to was directed at Great Britain, and from the trend of events, past and present, it is equally clear that Italy entertains the belief that Great Britain has been right along directing the policy of the League. This myth being created that Great Britain is the only nation who does anything at all in Geneva, and that every proposal comes from the British Government. It is, therefore, fair and equitable that a careful survey of the situation is made at this juncture.

Great Britain, situated as she is, and with her empire and dominions flung in all parts of the world, can never take a secondary part in any international discussion. She cannot abdicate her responsibilities or disguise her views. What her representatives at Geneva did was done in the open, and while they have been boldly and freely expressing their views, representatives of several other countries have been taking a most important and prominent part in the discussion. It is unfortunate, however, that those discussions were not held in public. If they had been, it would have been impossible to create the impression that Great Britain was alone active.

A great Empire is bound to have its enemies. There are many who are jealous of the position that Great Britain holds in the world. There are many who wish to make trouble in Europe and embroil Britain with its friends. It is such as these who are trying to make it appear that Great Britain is attempting to use the League for selfish ends and is bent upon the mobilization of her machinery for the humiliation of Italy.

We have to remind the Italian Government that there has never been a week—there has scarcely been a day—when the British Government has not made her position as clear as crystal to the Italian Government. She has also let it be known to the world that the British Government regarded the crisis as one that was fraught with issues of the greatest danger.

To an observant person it will be seen that for nearly a year, during the time of the Rome Agreement and later during the Stresa Conference, the Italian Government was never in doubt as to the attitude of the British Government. His Majesty's Government could scarcely have embarked on a course of action which might have given the impression that she was preserving existing British interests in Abyssinia at the cost of endangering the security of that country.

CHAMPAGNE POPULAR IN GERMANY

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press")
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1892. Received, November 14, 1.30 p.m.)

Berlin, Nov. 14.

The consumption of champagne which has been increasing steadily throughout Germany for two years past has at last exceeded the pre-war amounts for the first time since the World War. In 1913 Germany drank 12 million bottles and 13 million bottles in 1935. This is all the more remarkable because in the preceding decade the average consumption was only one-third pre-war.

The explanation is first that the tax was abolished so that the shop price is now only 24 to 3 marks per bottle, the second being the general increase in prosperity in Germany and the decrease of unemployment put many earners in a position to enjoy this delicacy.

CRICKETERS AT DINNER

Interport Visitors Honoured

An atmosphere of utmost conviviality prevailed at the Interport dinner held last night at the Hong Kong Club in honour of the Hong Kong and Shanghai cricket teams.

PRESIDENT'S TOAST

After the toast to the King had been drunk, Mr. Hancock, in proposing the toast of the Shanghai and Hong Kong teams, said he was delighted to welcome the Shanghai team under the able captaincy of Mr. Donald Leach. At the same time he would like to congratulate the Hong Kong eleven on their victory, and also the Shanghai team on their magnificent defeat. He had never witnessed such a thrilling finish to an Interport match in all his experience, and it was much to his indignation and horror to have read in one of the evening newspapers something about Shanghai's timid batting.

The match, said Mr. Hancock, would go down in Interport history as Ricketts' match. As usual the game was played in the most sporting and friendly spirit, as was to be expected in all Interport games; and it was only his regret that Anno Domini prevented him from taking an active part in the game. He would, however, always continue to take an interest in the series, and do his best to keep the matches going.

OLD FRIENDS

The speaker also said that on occasions such as this they should not forget old friends, and he mentioned the names of Captain E. I. M. Barrett, the terror of bowlers, and Dr. O'Hara, and Mr. T. E. Pearce, whom he was glad to see playing again, and who thoroughly deserved his place in the team.

In conclusion, Mr. Hancock thanked all those who had helped to make the Interport week a success, and made special mention of Mr. A. K. Mackenzie. He also referred to the impending departures of Mr. R. Booth, of Shanghai, and Mr. Ricketts of Hong Kong.

FLAG HANDED OVER

Mr. Donald Leach, in a witty speech, in which he expressed humorous opinions of the Hong Kong team, thanked Mr. Hancock for the hospitality that had been extended them during their stay in the Colony.

Mr. Leach then handed to Mr. Hayward the Shanghai flag amid applause.

Mr. Hayward replied suitably, and called on the Hong Kong team to drink to the health of the Shanghai cricketers.

TOAST OF GUESTS

Mr. T. E. Pearce, proposed the toast of the guests, and said that it was with much regret that His Excellency the Officer Administrator, the Government, Sir Thomas Southern, and the Chief Justice, Sir Atholl MacGregor, were unable to be present. He felt sure they would all wish him to express to Sir Thomas and Lady Southern their thanks for having invited the teams to lunch at Government House.

In a few well chosen words Mr. Brearley replied on behalf of the guests.

The gathering then went on to have an excellent time.

KUOMINTANG CONGRESS DECISION

Hu Han Min And Wang Urged To Return

Nanking, Nov. 13.

In accordance with the decision reached at the second preparatory meeting of the Kuomintang Congress this morning, the Congress Secretariat despatched a telegram at 1 p.m. urging Mr. Hu Han Min and Dr. Wang Chung-hui to return to China as soon as possible to participate in deliberation of national affairs.

The telegram was sent to the Chinese Legation in Paris which was asked to convey copies to the addressees.

Despite the decision reached yesterday limiting the presidium to fifteen members, twenty three were elected this morning to serve as the presidium.

The Kweichow Chairman, Wu Chung-hsin, and the Kiangsu Chairman, Chen Kuo-fu, were among the four persons added to the list of nineteen nominated by the Central Executive Committee. Before adjournment at noon the Congress sent two delegates to visit Mr. Wang Ching-wei at the Central Hospital, expressing warm hopes for his early recovery.

The first regular session of the Congress will be held at 9 a.m. to-morrow.

MR. WANG'S THANKS

Nanking, Nov. 14.

In an autographed letter to the Fifth National Congress to-day, President Wang Ching-wei expressed thanks for the sympathies and concern of the Congress over his health, as expressed through two of its delegates, Messrs. Wang

Chiu-shan, and Shih Tze-chow who called on President Wang at the Central Hospital this morning.

SOUTH-WEST DELEGATES

Nanking, Nov. 14.

Conviction that the concrete policies in relation to the Party and state will be derived as a result of sincere co-operation among all the responsible leaders, who are or will be present in the Capital, was expressed by Mr. Chou Lu, member of the South-west Political Council, in an interview with a representative of the Central News Agency to-day.

According to Mr. Chou, all the C.E.C. members in Kwangtung and Kwangsi, with the exception of those who are unable to leave their posts on account of the pressure of duties, have headed for Nanking to attend the Congress.

Mr. Chou declared that General Li Chung-jen returned to Nanking from Canton yesterday to attend to his duties. As soon as a special plane, chartered by the Central Government to convey him to the Capital arrives in the South, General Li will come up to the North.

Another batch of about 50 Kwangtung, Kwangsi and Overseas delegates to the Congress, it was further learned from Mr. Chou, will be here to-morrow.

Concluding, Mr. Chou stated that neither he nor any of the C.E.C. members residing in Kwangtung and Kwangsi have submitted any proposals to the Fifth Kuomintang Congress.

SINO-JAPANESE TENSION

Big Reward Offered By S.M.C.

Shanghai, Nov. 14.

Spurred by Japanese dissatisfaction at the efforts to apprehend the murder of Nakayama, the Shanghai Municipal Council has offered a reward of $1,000 for information leading to his arrest. The amount is considerably higher than is usual in such cases.

Hundreds of persons have been interviewed in the past few days, but no clue has been obtained as to the identity of the assassin.

Japanese naval marines are still active on the scene of the crime. The Shanghai "Mainichi" in a leading article blames the Chinese rumour mongers for the present Sino-Japanese tension, quoting several wild reports of Chinese and Japanese military preparations.

CHINESE REWARD

Shanghai, Nov. 14.

The Chinese authorities in Shanghai have offered a thousand dollars reward for information leading to the apprehension of the slayer of Nakayama.

The Chapel police this afternoon arrested five alleged rumour mongers.

Meanwhile a wholesale exodus from Chapel is proceeding rivaling the scenes of the hectic days of 1932.

EXODUS CONTINUES

Shanghai, Nov. 14.

While no further developments have occurred to aggravate the situation at Shanghai, the undercurrent of uneasiness is exemplified by the unending exodus from Chapel, which persists in both Chinese and foreign circles. Alarmist rumours, such as that Japanese troops have landed at Luho on the Yangtze estuary, have undoubtedly stimulated the evacuation.

A rumour that 60,000 Japanese blue jackets had landed at Shanghai elicited the explanation that 500 replacements arrived on Monday last in the course of normal trooping. It is significant, however, that the relieved forces have not yet left for Japan.

Meanwhile, the Chinese are turning anxious eyes to North China, owing apparently to a deep-rooted conviction that something is brewing there.

GAY SCENES IN PHILIPPINES

Ushering In The New Regime

Manila, Nov. 14.

This City presents a gay and colourful appearance on the last day of the old regime. Crowds, including many thousands of visitors from the provinces, throng the streets which are decorated with coloured lights, flags and bunting.

This morning Governor General Murphy delivered his last speech as Governor before the joint session of the Legislature, briefly reviewing the islands history since the advent of Americana. He emphasised the sound condition of the government's finances.

He will take the oath as High Commissioner before Mr. George Dem. U.S. War Minister, this afternoon. Cavalry will escort him from the Malacanán Palace to the Manila Hotel where he will temporarily reside. He will be visited by the chiefs of the Army, Navy and Air Force at the hotel.

The inauguration of President Quezon and the Commonwealth Government takes place to-morrow and will be followed by a day of festival and carnival, parades, games, concerts, and concluding with a ball which will last all night.

CHINA'S GREETINGS

Nanking, Nov. 14.

Mr. Wang Ching-wei, President of the Executive Yuan and concurrently Minister of Foreign Affairs, sent a congratulatory message to Mr. Manuel Quezon, the newly-elected President of the Philippine Commonwealth Government, felicitating the latter on the eve of his inauguration.

BELGIAN PAINTINGS

Nanking, Nov. 13.

An exhibition of modern Belgian paintings will be held for eight days, beginning from November 17, at the National Central University here under the auspices of the Belgian Legation.

M. Guillaume, Belgian Minister in China, will proceed to the Capital on November 15 from Peiping to inaugurate the opening service of the exhibit, which will take place at 3 o'clock on the afternoon of November 17.

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT FAVOURED

County Results Expected To Offset Borough Losses

London, November 14.

Although rain is forecast for the later part of day, the weather was bright this morning and conditions were favourable for a heavy vote in the polling which is taking place throughout Britain. There were no last minute surprises in the campaign which ended last night. Electioneering continued until a late hour and to-day the candidates have the assistance of army supporters, and fleets of motor cars are engaged in carrying voters to the polling booths.

In 225 urban constituencies returning 232 members, counting will begin to-night as soon as the poll closes and the first results will be announced soon after 10 o'clock. The British Broadcasting Corporation have arranged to announce the results as received from that hour onwards until 4 a.m. All parties anticipate that in these 225 constituencies the Government will incur their heaviest losses.

The last Parliament these 232 seats were held by 197. Government supporters and 35 of the Opposition.

1929 the Parliament Conservative held 77 seats, Labour 138, Liberals 14 and Independent 3.

A survey of the situation at a late hour to-night will be given in the British Wireless at 11.30 p.m. M.T.

POLLS OPEN EARLY

London, Nov. 14.

Britain is going to the polls to-day to elect a new House of Commons. There are 615 seats to be filled but 40 members have already been elected unopposed.

It is scarcely daylight when the polls opened in many places at 7 a.m. Other began operations at 8 o'clock and the closing time will be p.m. or 9 p.m. according to the local conditions. Voting is proceeding in favourable weather for the time of the year with fitful puffs of sunshine.

Mr. Stanley Baldwin drove from Downing Street to the Westminster polling station at 10.30 to record his vote.

SACTIONS BY BELGIUM

Cahet Decision Attacked

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Brussels, Nov. 13.

The Cahet was in session on Wednesday and has approved the text of the decrees. The first deals with the enactment of prohibition on credits to Italy. The second is a place an embargo on all supplies of munitions to Italy, and the third is that within a fortnight, Belgium Congo will also adopt these measures.

A vehement protest against Belgium's sanctions policy was made at a meeting attended by three thousand persons, at which the principal speaker was the Italian deputy, Signor Carlo del Croci, a leader of Italian ex-servicemen, and who gave a lecture on the Italian Abyssinian War.

The Belgian Minister, M. Carton de Wiart, also Belgian representative at Geneva, opened the proceedings. He immediately referred to the subject of the lecture with the remark that Belgium could not possibly adopt any other attitude than that arrived at present at Geneva.

The assembly burst into uproar in which shouts of abuse for Van Zeeland government were mingled with clamours for Italy. The Minister attempted in vain to continue speaking—the audience simply shouted him down, and cries of "Away with sanctions" coming from the gallery which was filled with members of Belgian Ex-Soldiers Association and other Nationalist organisations.

Great applause on the contrary greeted the Italian speaker's reference to "British Empire" which had made use of the League to further its own aims. In addition, the leader of the Ex-Servicemen

ELEMENT OF DOUBT

Expert observers of all parties agree that the National Government forces will return roughly 400 seats and be greatly diminished. One strong element of doubt is furnished in the political views of the new electorate which is nearly a million and a half greater than the last election. For example, one division alone in Essex has 48,000 new voters. Women voters exceed men by a million and three quarters.

It is expected that the result in 232 constituencies will be declared to-night and all the results except 14 will be known by to-morrow night.

To-night's result will be mostly borough constituencies in which the Socialists are expected to secure a majority of gains which all parties will concede them. Consequently the figures would probably seem adverse to the National Government, but to-morrow's result from the counties will probably change the picture.

ITALIAN NOTE OF PROTEST

Collective Reply Suggestion

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press")
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, November 14, 7.30 p.m.)

Paris, Nov. 14.

No suggestion for a collective reply to the Italian note protesting against the sanctions and forwarded to the governments of all League member States has yet been made by Britain according to authoritative information, and while such a suggestion would naturally receive careful consideration, it is pointed out that such a collective step would be rather calculated to aggravate the situation.

It is, moreover, pointed out that the reply should be handed in to Rome before November 18, that is before the sanctions become effective, which would hardly leave sufficient time for negotiations necessary to draw up the text of a joint reply by the 52 States.

ITALY BANS CREDIT FOR FOREIGN TRADE

Rome, Nov. 13.

What is regarded as the first step of Italy's "counter sanctions plan" was taken to-day when regulations were issued abolishing credit for exports to France and her colonies. French commercial men must pay in advance for anything they may require from Italy. It is not clear why the new regulations apply only to France, but the fact that a British importer of lemon oil from Italy was refused further credit and was told it was impossible for him to obtain goods unless or until he opened a credit with an Italian bank, apparently indicates the extension of the rule to Britain.

It is believed that Italy will meet the ban on her exports by an embargo on imports from countries supporting sanctions. Meanwhile, the Press is campaigning to persuade the nation to economise drastically and cut down the consumption of imported goods, especially paper. Foreign goods have disappeared from the shop windows.

All Italians are informed that it is their strict duty to refuse to buy all the following Spanish exports: Fresh as well as preserved fruits, raisins, olive oil, artificial manure, arsenic sulphate, lead sheets, colophonium, turpentine, untanned skins, wool and other luxuries, such as sherry, malaga. Many of these articles, it is pointed out, can be replaced by Italian products, if not they should be imported from countries not participating in sanctions.

Serious Italian Threat In The South

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, November 14, 7.30 p.m.)

Addis Ababa, November 14.

The position in the southern front is apparently causing uneasiness in the Abyssinian headquarters which admit that considerable progress had been made by the Italian flying columns since the beginning of the week, although the capture of Sassa-baneh and Daghabur are still denied.

The Italians are now threatening the strategically important caravan route in the neighbourhood of Jijiga according to despatches received here, which add that Italian airplanes have already been sighted to the north of Jijiga.

In order to strengthen the Abyssinian southern army under General Nasibu which is estimated to number 150,000 men occupying the square between Harar, Jijiga, Bisworaba and Warroh, the government has given instructions that all arms and munitions arriving from Port Berbera in British Somaliland be conveyed directly to the front.

Besides the above mentioned troops, some 60,000 men under Ras Getatsha are stationed behind Jijiga in a triangle between the railway and the frontier of British Somaliland while another 40,000 under Dedshashmatch. Ambar occupy a position about 45 miles south of Harar.

ELUSIVE RAS SEYOUM

Asmara, Nov. 14.

Ras Seyoum is said to be in hiding behind the Italian lines in the village of Geraltia region near Mount Gundi according to some Abyssinian prisoners of war. The native troops have been ordered to scour the region in order to verify the story.

Italian military quarters opine that apart from the fact that the capture of Ras Seyoum would be a great feather in Italy's cap, a general clean-up of Geraltia region is necessary since large numbers of Abyssinian sharpshooters "concealed" therein are continually harassing the Italian flank.

GRAZIANI'S PLAN

General Graziani's plan of advance in South Ethiopia will consist of seizing successively a series of water holes, thus securing his communications.

The advance will be made by mechanized units armed with machine-guns. On arrival at a water hole, the transport will be formed into a ring facing the desert. It will then await a relieving convoy, and on the latter's arrival the first convoy will make the next jump forward, leaving the water hole impregnable guarded.

Violent Scuffles Between Rioters And Police

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press").

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, November 14, 7.30 p.m.)

Cairo, November 14.

Three persons have been killed and upwards of 150—including 45 policemen—were injured in the course of a violent scuffle between the police and a hostile crowd during the early hours of Thursday morning. The crowd bombarded the police with stones and bottles, whereupon the police, after firing several shots in the air, made a baton charge.

The demonstrators also smashed the windows of the British Legation, which is now protected by troops who are also occupying the principal buildings in the square of the capital.

It is feared that the disorders may spread to the provinces and the Government has issued severe instructions to all the provincial authorities.

MOB ATTACK REPELLED

The situation arising from the riots is very tense. A mob in which a thousand men armed with sticks and branches of trees began advancing on the city from Giza was intercepted by two hundred police and a desperate fight ensued.

The police fired over the heads of the rioters in an endeavour to force them to retreat, but they kept advancing and as a last resort an officer in self-defence drew his revolver and shot to death four of the attackers, whereupon the mob fled in panic.

There were further disturbances here this evening, following a huge Wafdist mass meeting which passed a resolution for non-cooperation with Great Britain and demanded the resignation of Nessim Pasha's Government.

The situation took a decidedly serious turn when angry crowds attacked police with bottles and stones. The police were forced to fire on several occasions, and it is understood there were many casualties on both sides.

The outbreak to-night was the climax of three days of political excitement over the attitude of Britain and the Egyptian constitutional question.

HONG KONG RIFLE ASSOCIATION

Spoon And Practice Shoot

At the Spoon and Practice Shoot held by the Association on Wednesday afternoon, on the Army Ranges at Kowloon City, Lance-Corporal Gooch, of the Royal Army Ordnance Corps, again demonstrated what can be accomplished with the rifle "as issued," when he put up a score of no less than 92 points out of a "highest possible" of 105. This aggregate is less by three points than the total score made by him last week, but it must not be forgotten that, on the present occasion, the light was becoming rapidly worse as he finished shooting. The fact that his score was only one point less than the highest made by others who were using the perturbation sling, shows, beyond question, that this N.C.O. possesses, to an unusual degree, that expert knowledge of his own weapon, which is the aim of all good riflemen, and that, without doubt, he is the best "Service" shot in the Association today.

On Wednesday afternoon next, the Association is holding the third of its invitation shoots, when a match will take place between the Royal Navy, Royal Engineers, battalions of Infantry, the Royal Army Ordnance Corps, Volunteers and Police. Conditions are that teams shall consist of six members of the unit who are also members of the H.K.R.A., that the rifles to be used are those "as issued," that the conditions of shooting shall be as for the 1st stage of the King's, and that dress shall be optional. Concurrently with this event the ordinary S.R. (a) Spoon Shoot will take place, and it is anticipated that a large number of members will take part in these two concurrent events, apart from those who wish to compete for the S.R. (b) Spoons.

The leading scores made, on Wednesday afternoon, under King's 1st stage conditions (H.P.S. 105), were as follows:—

LIKELY WINNERS IN TO-MORROW'S RACES

The Chances In The Daily Double

(BY BLACK ROCK)

1. The 12th Extra Race Meeting of the Hong Kong Jockey Club opens with the Rotham Handicap for "B" Class Australians. This race has a very small entry and Snowy River (Frost) even though given 162 lbs. to carry appears outstanding. This pony is very difficult to get away at the gate and unless she has a good start I am afraid she will not win. Alacrity (Fung) has not been running well lately and St. Joan (Proulx) after a long absence from the course, has been let in at only 135 lbs. Streamline (Black) should place.

2. The 2nd Race is the Hong Kong St. Leger which has 10 entries. I understand that the unbeaten griffin of this year, and Derby winner Herod, will be taken out by Mr. Y. T. Fung. No doubt he will provide Mr. Fung with his first classic success. However Herod's gallop on Wednesday morning was not very impressive finishing a 2.10.2 mile in 32.3 seconds. Still there are no other ponies in this race that belong to this class. Of the remaining ponies there are two changes in the jockeys for two stern challengers, Rose Queen being ridden by Black and King's Jubilee by G. U. da Roza. It will prove interesting to see what effect the change of jockeys will produce. Soldier of Peace (Deitz) is a much improved pony and is my selection for second place, whilst Pontiac Bay (Frost) and Harvest View (Fung) are the other dangers.

3. The 3rd Race is the Castle Peak Handicap for "A" Class ponies over one mile. In this race Ogleham Bay, an old favourite having just returned from "Glen-stuff" after having great successes there, will be seen in action. I understand Davis will be riding him. Our ex-champion Diana Bay may start whilst the other crack starters will probably be of the Hong Kong Jockey Club, Cossack's Beauty (Liang) Gladiator (Fung) King's Warden (Roza) Soldier of Britain (Deitz). I select Cossack's Beauty to win with Gladiator and Soldier of Britain to fill the places.

4. The Sub-Griffins St. Leger will see a return match of the duel between Valley View and Wadebridge. I am told that Wadebridge will be ridden by Roza, and I think he should avenge his defeat this time. Valley View (Liang) is reported very fit and has been resting since for this race. Of the remaining entries 17th September (Frost) and Sci-Fa are the only others that are dangerous. I am afraid that Lucky Strike (Deitz) will find the distance too long for him.

5. The Shum Chun Handicap for "C" Class ponies over five furlongs is the first leg of the double. With the carrying over of $3,600 from last meeting, heavy betting will be made on this double. The race lies between the following four ponies, Bistr (Black), High Speed (Ph), Mistake Bay (Frost) and Victoria Hall (Proulx). Of course Mistake Bay will be made a favourite but the weight may have effect. (Proulx) Victoria Hall has good chances, whilst High Speed being a very fast starter is dangerous and Bistr (Black) on recent form should be close.

6. The Fremantle St. Leger will have a very small field and the result should be between Cold Morning (Fung), Southern Cross (Davies) and Vixen Tor (Ralph). On late form Vixen Tor should win, but Southern Cross is a known stayer and the distance may help him to win. Of the other entries I doubt any of them will be able to stand the distance.

Soccer-Races-Billiards Boxing-Lawn Bowls

Behind the scenes in Soccer they are still considering the proposed boycott by Jewish football followers of the England v. Germany match on Tottenham Hotspur's ground on Dec. 4.

Judging by conversations I have had with various officials, there is little likelihood of the Football Association being rushed into any hasty action.

There seems no inclination to interfere with the plans made for the game. However, there is little doubt that the protest actually made to the F.A. will come before the International Selection Committee.

In any case, there is little likelihood of the game being hit by a Jewish boycott. While the 'Spurs' have a large Jewish following, the match goes far beyond the bounds of North London in its appeal.

As a matter of fact applications for tickets are coming in from all parts of the country.

RACES—AND A RACE

Meantime, Germany's assurances that there is no bias in her national sport look rather weak in face of the action taken following the victory of the Jewish-owned Athanasius in this year's "Brown Ribbon" race.

The Third Reich authorities are doing all they can to ensure the race shall be won next year by a horse, a jockey and stable of unquestionably Aryan origin.

They have sent a written appeal to all the leading owners announcing that "for the reputation of German racing it is expected that each stable of any size shall furnish at least one entrant for the 'Brown Ribbon'."

To make the event as attractive as possible the stakes have been increased from £4,000 to £8,000.

If the appeal receives a 100 per cent. response the field for the race should look like the charge of the Light Brigade.

NOVEL BILLIARDS MATCH

A billiards crowd used to seeing Walter Lindrum, Joe Davis and the other modern professionals clicking up their four-figure breaks, were given the light of the game as it was played 100 years ago at Burroughes Hall, London, yesterday.

W. J. Peall, the old-time champion, met Sidney Fry, eight times holder of the amateur title, in an hour's game on a table which was made over 100 years ago. And Peall, who is near his 81 birthday, beat the amateur—13 years junior—by 225 points to 187.

What a table it was, to be sure! The bed was formed of 72 pieces of oak, mortised, tenoned and doweled and the well-rounded cushions were stuffed with list.

And as the match, played under the old rules, went on, the balls rumbled and thundered over the table and hit the cushions with a dull thud.

PEALL'S 65-YEAR-OLD CUE

Sidney Fry had not played billiards for ten years. Indeed, he arrived at the hall without a cue. Yet, despite his lack of practice, many of his strokes bore the stamp of class.

Playing with 65-year-old cue which was made for the father of the great John Roberts, Peall showed that he had not forgotten the old "push" stroke. He also used the "push" on three occasions, once remarking, "Now, I will show you a good, old-fashioned shot."

It was a match of memories. Peall, wearing a tie-pin which King Edward (then Prince of Wales) presented him in 1889 for making a 500 break at Royal request, had not lost any of the mannerisms of half-a-century ago.

The tip of his tongue showed through his teeth when he was left with a difficult position, and vices has a large field. This is the second leg of the double and most difficult race of the day. Glad Eyes (Choy Wing Hing) will have a large following as also Wembley Stag who will be taken care of by the very much improved Mr. Wood. Boxing Eve, Tullium and Festival Eve are others that should be near.

8. The meeting closes with another sprint even for "C" class ponies. What a Chance (Ph) should start favourite, but I am afraid that the weight will have effect. Zero (Ralph) is another fast starter whilst Great Hall, Racing Boy, Pride of Tsingtao are capable of winning.

LAWN TENNIS ROMANCE

Players In Doubles To Wed

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 22.

A London lawn tennis romance is soon to have its sequel in a wedding at Melbourne Cathedral.

On November 9 Mr. R. F. Bessemer Clark, who is a member of the Melbury Club, Kensington, is to sail for Australia to marry on January 7 Miss Elaine Brookes, second daughter of Mr. Norman Brookes, in his day the world's greatest lawn tennis player.

Miss Brookes played and watched a lot of lawn tennis during a European tour with her father this year, and it was then that she met Mr. Bessemer Clark in London.

PLAYED IN DOUBLES

"We were introduced at the Melbury Club," he told me today. "We met afterwards at Wimbledon and played together in the mixed doubles at Lady Crossfield's tennis garden party."

"I believe our wedding will be attended by many tennis friends, possibly F. J. Perry, who when in Australia visits Mr. Brookes, will be there."

Mr. Bessemer Clark is a great-grandson of Sir Henry Bessemer, inventor of the process, which transformed the manufacture of steel.

he would pull down the back of his waistcoat when things were going his way.

U.S. BOXING CHANGE

A message from New York states that James J. Johnston has been superseded by Mike Jacobs, promoter of the Barr-Louis fight, as controller of boxing activities at Madison-square Garden, the famous New York arena.

By this move, the big American boxing "war" has ended. Mr. Jacobs has cut heavily into the Madison-square Garden's takings by his spectacular fight promotions.

Indeed, the Garden lost something like £12,000 in a year. There was an effort by certain stockholders to oust Col. John Kilpatrick from the presidency of the £1,000,000 corporation.

Although Col. Kilpatrick remains, changes are being made. The Jacobs takes over the boxing privileges at the Garden.

WILL JOHNSTON RETIRE?

Will this mean, I wonder, that James Johnston will give up business interests in boxing? He will be 60 next month, and after four strenuous years at Madison-square may feel he needs a rest.

Yet I expect that the dapper little promoter will be back before long. His whole interest is in boxing.

In his conversation—and he is considered by boxing men to be the champion talker—Johnston seems typically American. Yet he has one very English characteristic: it is his liking for afternoon tea.

Precisely at four o'clock a tray of tea and toast is brought into his office. This, I suppose, is a link with his early days, for he was born in Liverpool.

HOW HE BEGAN

As a boy, James Johnston worked in a bakery and later became apprenticed to an iron founder.

He drifted into boxing, but his ring career ended when most of his front teeth were knocked out. After that, as he has said, he came to the conclusion that there was far more enjoyment in management.

In all Johnston has managed seven world's champions, while he also looked after Phil Scott's affairs when the former British titleholder made his U.S. trip.

RULES FOR INDOOR BOWLERS

All those ideas of bowls players calmly ambulating up the green have been shattered. When the Paddington Indoor green was opened yesterday, an attendant shouted to one player, "Don't run, please!"

However, the order was not made because the play was breaking the calm of the game. It was merely to preserve the rubber and lute surface of the green.

PALMER'S BAD LUCK

Ambrose Palmer, the Australian champion, who meets Ed Westcott, the Canadian cowboy, at Wembley on Nov. 12, has not had a very encouraging start to his English tour.

Over the week-end he received a cable stating that his Melbourne house had been burgled and all his boxing cups stolen.

S'HAH INTERPORTERS DRAW WITH SERVICES

Batsmen Well To The Fore

KERMANI SCORES 121

Bright batting featured the cricket match between the Shanghai Interport team and the United Services which ended in a draw yesterday on the H.K.C.C. ground. The game started with Shanghai having the lease of the wicket. Stokes put in some hefty hitting which yielded him 43 runs. Kermani, the Shanghai wonder batsman once again delighted the spectators with his all round hitting ability and scored his second century when he made 121 runs before being bowled by Bonavia. Shanghai declared at about 3 p.m. with 288 runs for 9 wickets.

Major Bonavia and Lt. Williams opened for the United Services and both were in fine fettle scoring runs from all sides. Lt. Williams was however clean bowled by Leach when he had scored 29 while Major Bonavia carried his bat for 64.

Lt. Bramwell showed that he had a repertoire of strokes and was getting set when he in attempting to hit out off Leach was well held by Jenkins at square leg. The Services declared at 165 for 5 wickets.

Generally speaking it was not a bowlers' day as the batsmen were much in evidence. The most successful bowler was Leach who captured two wickets for the loss of 30 runs.

LOCAL HOCKEY

In a friendly hockey game at the Navy ground (King's Park) yesterday, the Navy "A" trounced the European Police to the tune of three goals to nil.

On the day's play the sailors had the better of exchanges and were by far superior to their opponents.

The Navy opened the scoring in the first ten minutes of the game. The "one" of their lightning attacks Lt. Myers scored with a shot which gave Jessop the Police custodian no chances at all, to put them one in the lead. This was followed with another in the next five minutes from the stick of Reathe. There was no more scoring in the first half.

After the breather the game became a ding-dong struggle with both sides doing their share of attacking, but no goals were registered till the closing stages of the game, when the sailors in another of their characteristic attacks scored the last goal of the game through Reathe, who was the most dangerous man in the Navy forward line.

MANY DEAD IN GALE'S HAVOC

Scots Villages And Towns Ravaged

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 23. The great gale which swept over the British Isles at the week-end left behind it a trail of havoc. In Scotland trees and hoardings were blown down, railway and electricity services dislocated, houses and streets flooded, shops damaged, and several people fatally injured.

The gale was still raging yesterday along the East coast of Scotland, and in the North-West of England, and in Ireland.

At Aberdeen there were gusts of a velocity of nearly 70 miles an hour, and at Holyhead the wind was nearly as strong. Reports of casualties, damage, and interrupted telephone communication came from many parts.

William Catto, of Loch Street, Aberdeen, a fireman on board the Aberdeen trawler Hood was lost overboard, and a deck hand Andrew Tait of Cairnbulg, injured during the storm.

BUILDINGS DAMAGED

After a series of gusts late on Friday night the gale broke over Glasgow at midnight, and, reaching a peak velocity at 2 a.m. The wind uprooted trees, smashed hoardings, and dislocated transport and telephone services.

At 2 a.m. the wind reached 84 m.p.h., and at 4.30 a gust at 82 m.p.h. was recorded. At Abbotsinch Meteorological Station the highest gust recorded during the night was 92 m.p.h.

The level of the Clyde rose considerably under the force of the gale and sailings were delayed.

In the morning the city streets were littered with wreckage, and throughout Saturday the dislocation of the telephone service was a constant reminder of the fury of the storm.

During the week-end maintenance squads were repairing damaged services, and in the city joiners, plumbers, and road workers were in demand.

STRUCK BY MASONRY

Blinded by the rain Hugh Edgar (59) was knocked down by a motor car and fatally injured at the junction of Hope Street and Argyle Street.

A cyclist, John Allan, 51 Thurston Road, was blown across Riverford Road and crashed into a motor car. He suffered severe injuries.

Mrs Lillian Ponsford, 33 Burnbank Gardens, was knocked down by a bus in Butterbiggins Road and suffered internal injuries. She was detained in Victoria Infirmary.

An elderly man was blown against a stairway and injured, a hoarding fell on another, and a third was struck by falling masonry.

CHIMNEY POTS CRASH

Twelve families left a condemned tenement in Commercial Road at the height of the storm. Workmen had been engaged in demolishing the property, but at 3 a.m. the gable collapsed and left the families homeless.

Chimney pots crashed through house, roofs in Pollock Street, Oxford Street, and Thistle Street. In Thistle Street a woman and her eight-year-old daughter were injured and removed to Victoria Infirmary for treatment.

On the river at full tide the water continued to rise under the force of the gale, and in the harbours it rose to within a few feet of the quayside. It was found impossible to manoeuvre the Anchor liner Transylvania out of Yorkhill Quay. The City of Batavia, bound for Red Sea ports, was also delayed.

Suburban gardens were flooded and in Pollokshaws Road tramcars and buses drove through eight inches of water.

WINDOWS SHATTERED

At Waverley Station, Edinburgh, on Saturday it was stated that there was some dislocation owing to the blowing down of trees and of telegraph and telephone poles. About 100 chimney cans were blown down in the city.

The storm of wind and heavy rain caused damage to property, trees, and telephone lines at Paisley. The curator of the Coats Observatory (Mr J. Woodrow) reported on Saturday that between 1.30 a.m. and 6.30 a.m. the mean velocity of the wind was 43 m.p.h.

NEW GLASGOW PROFESSOR

Mr. Peter Alexander's Appointment

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 22. We understand that the King, on the recommendation of the Secretary of State for Scotland, has approved the appointment of Mr. Peter Alexander, M.A., to be Professor of English Language and Literature in the University of Glasgow in succession to Professor W. Macnellan Dixon, whose retirement was recently announced. Mr. Alexander has been for a number of years a senior lecturer in the English Department of Glasgow University.

MR. ALEXANDER'S CAREER

Mr. Peter Alexander, who is 41 years of age, is a distinguished son of Glasgow University. Those who recall the strange and stirring days of 1914 at the University will remember the band of students who, refusing to await the commissions they could readily have obtained, went forth in September, 1914, to join the 6th Battalion, Cameron Highlanders. Of this company Mr. Alexander was one. Later in the war he was commissioned to the Royal Field Artillery and rose to the rank of captain.

After the conclusion of hostilities Mr. Alexander returned to the University and took post-graduate honours of the first class in English Language, Literature, and British History, gaining at the same time one of the major University awards—the George A. Clark Scholarship.

After a short period of study abroad, he was invited to join the staff of the English department, and, within a few years, made an outstanding name for himself as lecturer and administrator. In the burdensome post-war period he gave unstinted help to Professor Dixon, and, in the most unassuming fashion, took upon his shoulders many important duties connected with the administration of the large classes, both ordinary and honours, which crowded the benches of the English classrooms. He was promoted first-grade lecturer, and was given charge of the now obsolete Queen Margaret College Lectureship on the death of his colleague and friend D. J. S. Smart.

SHAKESPEAREAN STUDIES

Mr. Alexander early showed his capacity as a scholar by his masterly handling of the notes left by Dr. Smart on Shakespearean tradition. At the time of his death Dr. Smart had left pencilled chapters, together with notes written, frequently, on stray sheets which were hard to decipher. With admirable judgment Mr. Alexander knit the strands together so that it became possible to issue what is now the well-known book entitled "Shakespeare: Truth and Tradition."

Mr. Alexander has continued these Shakespearean studies, and has on several occasions collaborated with the well-known Shakespearean scholar Dr. A. W. Pollard. In 1929 the Cambridge University Press issued his study of the texts of Henry VI. and Richard III., to which Dr. Pollard contributed an introduction.

Mr. Alexander is examiner for the preliminary examinations, the bursary competitions, and the degree examinations at Glasgow University. He is also examiner for honours degrees in Edinburgh University. He has rendered conspicuous service in Glasgow and throughout the West of Scotland in fostering the claims of adult education. He comes to the Chair of English Literature not as a stranger but as one who knows the work thoroughly in every aspect, and with a reputation already well established for sound scholarship and high administrative ability.

Eight gusts of over 75 m.p.h. were recorded, the highest being a gust of 84 m.p.h. at 2 a.m.

Widespread damage was caused by the storm at Greenock, windows of shops and houses being shattered, chimney heads being blown down, slates stripped from roofs, hoardings, barricades, and other erections being levelled to the ground, and trees uprooted.

All telegraphic communication between the island of Lewis, Hebrides, and the mainland has been cut off by the gale, and telephonic communication can only be established as far as Kyle.

ABBEY WEDDING COMEDY

Page Boy Tickles Little Bridesmaids

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 25. Lord Primrose, the six-year-old son of the Earl of Rosebery, provided amusement at the wedding of the Duke of Roxburghe and Lady Mary Crewe-Milnes in Westminster Abbey yesterday.

He was acting as page boy to the bride.

During the address by Dr. Temple, the Archbishop of York, who officiated at the ceremony, Lord Primrose's attention began noticeably to wander.

Standing between the two little bridesmaids, Lady Elizabeth Fitzmaurice and Miss Morna Buxton, behind the bride and groom, he stared all round and roofwards. Then he tickled the neck of Lady Elizabeth. She attempted to end this diversion, but he repeated it with gusto.

Lady Elizabeth put out a restraining hand, without effect. Mrs. Morna Buxton, on the other side, whispered to him. Lord Primrose's response was to turn and tickle her neck.

BRIDAL PROCESSION HALTED

Smiles were to be seen among the congregation, which were renewed when Lord Primrose, in his wide and flaming trousers, did three mighty "high jumps."

While the register was being signed, Lord Primrose chatted with the grown-up bridesmaids, standing along the side of the chancel. His final contribution to the proceedings was to become tangled up in the bridal train when the Wedding March started. Coming down the chancel steps the bride and groom had to halt laughing together, while he was extricated.

Thereafter he tucked the train firmly under his chin for safety, and also vigorously kicked it clear at each step. The expressions of little Lady Elizabeth and Miss Buxton were studies in pained reprieve.

LINDBERGH CASE ECHO

How Keg Of Nails Was Traced

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 25. One of the most striking proofs linking Bruno Hauptmann with the Lindbergh kidnapping, for which he is under sentence of death, appears in the current number of an American trade publication, the "Iron Age."

It is an article by Mr. Stanley Keith, the expert who demonstrated that the 44 nails in the ladder used to carry the baby from the nursery were taken from a keg found in Hauptmann's home and were in minute detail similar to 275 nails extracted from a garage which Hauptmann built in his garden. This evidence was never used by the prosecution as the Attorney-General felt that his case against Hauptmann was strong enough without it.

Mr. Keith's story of the quest for the source of the nails in the ladder reads like a detective novel. In 1931, the year before the kidnapping, 2,000,000 kegs of similar nails were manufactured in the United States.

MINUTE SIMILARITY

Despite this Mr. Keith narrowed down his search to a steel mill in Pennsylvania. This mill had produced 200,000 kegs of the type under examination.

Further study showed that as a new die is used approximately every eight years and other adjustments are made, to the machinery every eight minutes, only 16 kegs of nails would be almost exactly the same as those used by Hauptmann in his garage.

If Hauptmann did not build the ladder, Mr. Keith argues, it was a most amazing coincidence that the person who did, used nails from one of the 16 kegs not purchased by Hauptmann.

BRIDE YOUNGEST DUCHESS

Wedding of Royal Godchildren

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 25. Brilliant scenes were witnessed at the wedding in Westminster Abbey yesterday of the Duke of Roxburghe, the premier baronet of Scotland, to Lady Mary Crewe-Milnes.

By the marriage Lady Mary became, at the age of 20, the youngest Duchess. The Duke is two years her senior.

Both bride and bridegroom are god-children of the King and Queen. Lady Mary is the only daughter of the Marquess and Marchioness of Crewe.

The Duke, who has known Lady Mary from childhood days, is a second lieutenant in the Royal Horse Guards, the "Blues." He is one of the wealthiest peers in the country.

Men of the regiment lined both sides of the nave, their blue tunics and gleaming cuirasses making a fine note of colour against the dim Abbey background. An officer presented the bride with her bouquet, the gift of the regiment, on her arrival.

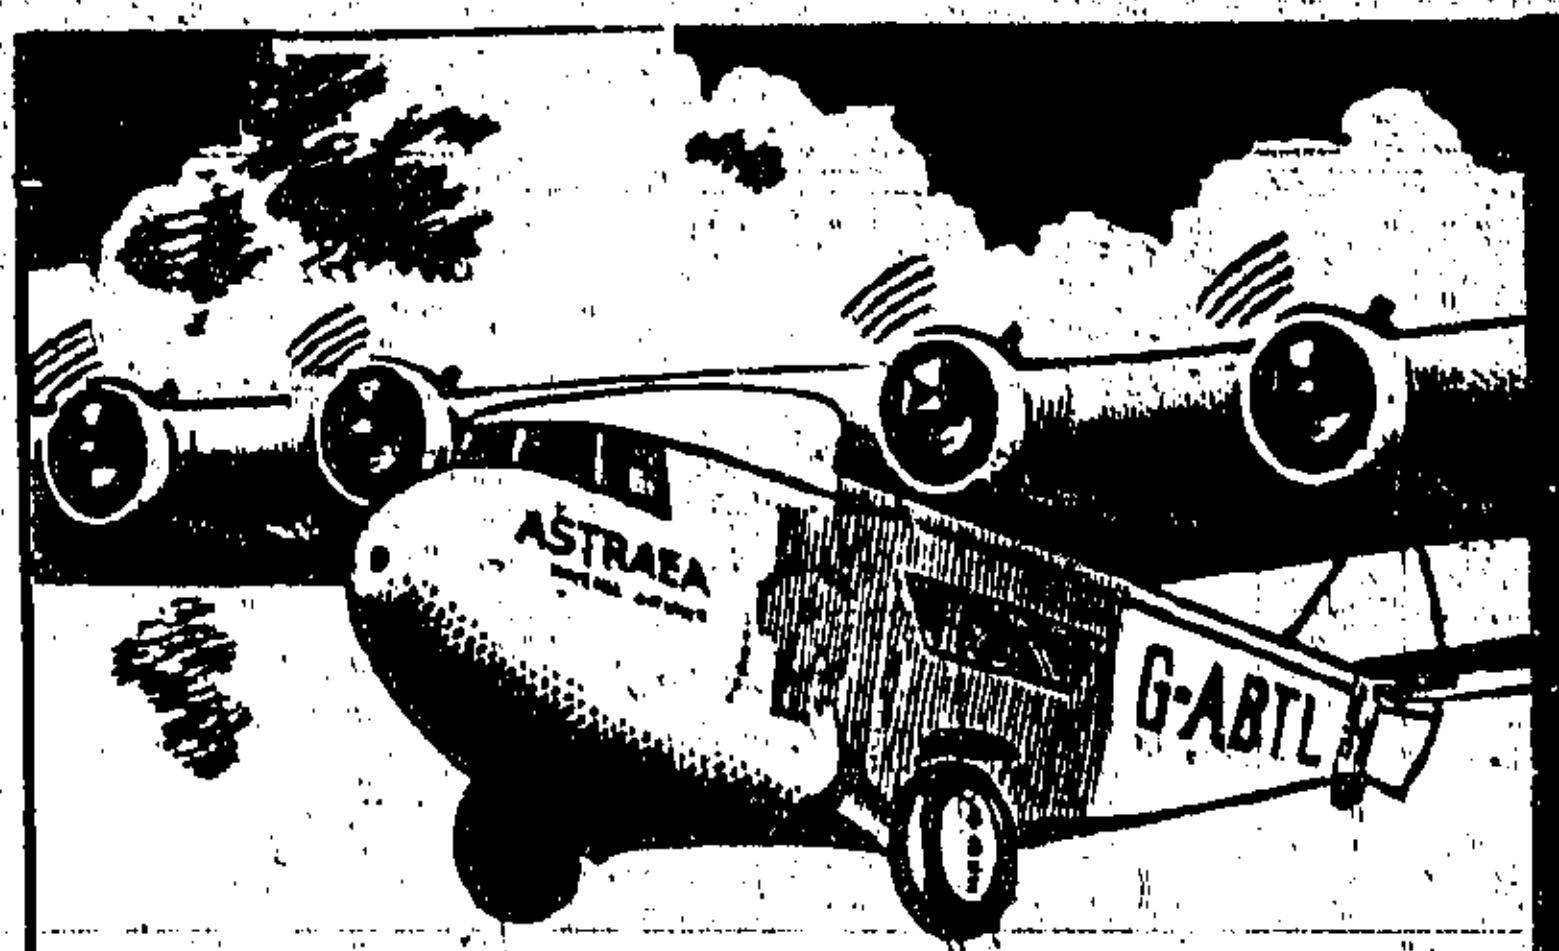

LONG BRIDAL RETINUE

The bride, in heavy white crepe, was attended by one of the longest bridal retinues ever seen in the Abbey. There were 14 bridesmaids—two of them, Lady Elizabeth Fitzmaurice and Miss Morna Buxton, little girls—and a tiny pageboy, the six-year-old Lord Primrose.

The bridesmaids were in striking, long-skirted frocks of flame-red velvet. Their bouquets and wreaths were in cellophane "moonlight" leaves, in which red flowers were intertwined.

Lord Primrose wore a long-trousered suit of red velvet with a large gold sash.

The Archbishop of York, Dr. Temple, conducted the service, assisted by the Rev. H. Stevens, rector of St. Mary's, West Horsley, where the bride's parents have a house. Mr. Arthur Collins, a cousin of the bridegroom, was best man.

BUILDING HALF WORLD'S SHIPS

Britain's Share Of New Tonnage

Statistics published to-day by Lloyd's Register show that during the quarter ended September 30 the amount of new merchant construction in hand in British shipyards was 73,742 tons less than the total reported 12 months ago. Compared with the preceding quarter of this year there is a decline of 29,787 tons. In spite of this reduction, the total of 530,554 tons now building here is nearly equal to the aggregate tonnage under construction in the five leading countries abroad.

Foreign shipyards are building 687,415 tons, or 54,800 tons less than the total reported at the end of last June. Germany leads with 288,340 tons, and is followed by Sweden, 89,000; Holland, 62,645; Japan, 61,305; and Denmark, 54,533.

In all, 1,197,969 tons of new construction are building at home and abroad, the share of British shipyards amounting to 44.3 per cent. During the quarter ended September 30 113,979 tons were begun in Great Britain, an increase of nearly 11,000 tons on the preceding quarter. Abroad, however, there was a big drop—93,450—in new tonnage begun, compared with the figure for the last quarter.

The returns for the current quarter, ending December 31, ought to show a marked improvement in British shipbuilding, for new orders are fairly numerous, and Clyde yards alone have booked about 70,000 tons of new contracts within the past fortnight.
